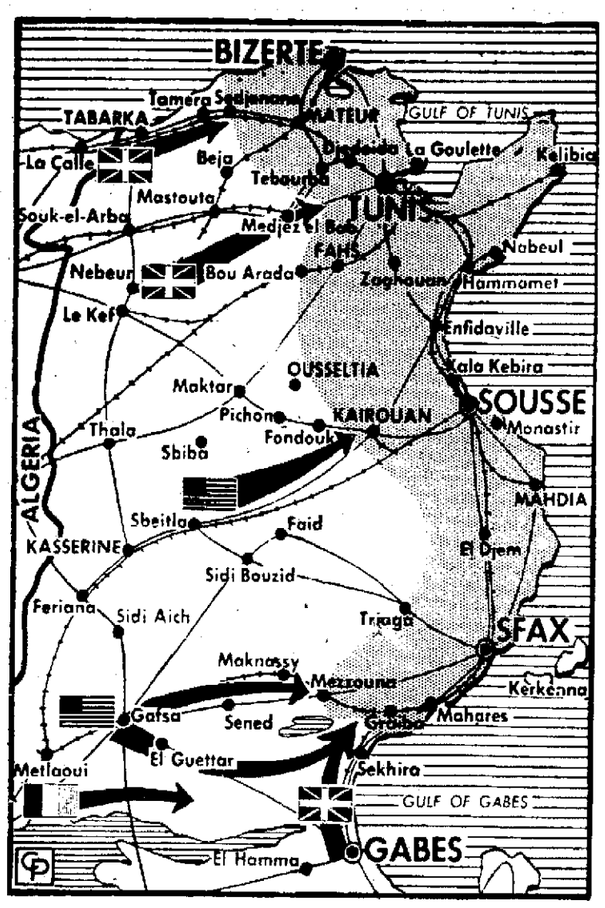
EIGHTH ARMY CAPTURES SFAX

As Allies Hole Up Desert Fox



The Allied armies were on their way toward "holing up" Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in northern Tunisia today as the British Eighth army captured Sfax and drove on rapidly northward toward Sousse where the Africa Corps is expected to try to make its next stand. But the Americans and British, meanwhile, had seized the mountain strongholds of Fondouk and Pichon posing a new threat on Rommel's left flank. They, too, continued to drive ahead. In the north the British First army kept up pressure on the Axis line around Tunis and Bizerte.

OPA Moves to Cut Commodity Prices

HOUSEWIVES EXPECTED TO NET SAVINGS

Byrnes Waits Dollars-Cents Ceilings as $14.50 Top On Hog Listings Looms.

WHEAT CONTROL SEEN

Regulation of Fish, Fruit and Milk Prices Also Being Readied.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The Office of Price Administration today prepared to roll-back some commodity prices which officials said would save housewives "a tidy sum."

No indication was given where the first cuts would be made. But experts said that it would not be possible to roll back all prices in excess of those prevailing on Sept. 15, 1942—the price stabilization goal.

Stabilization Director James E. Byrnes expected OPA to present to him today a plan for extension of dollar-and-cents ceilings to all commodities entering into the cost of living.

Another likely development today is the enunciation of a new government policy toward prices of live animals. The announcement, expected to be made by Food Administrator Chester Davis and Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown, reportedly will propose establishment of a floor as well as a ceiling over meat prices.

Imposition of a ceiling price of $14.50 per hundredweight on hogs was reported imminent. Recent prices have averaged $15.50 to $16.

Brown long has favored price ceilings on live animals as a price control measure and as a weapon against the black market. He was opposed by Secretary of Agriculture Claude P. Wickard. Davis assured the house small business committee yesterday that such ceilings would be imposed only as a last resort.

Lawyers also worked on regulations which soon will bring under President Roosevelt's "hold the line" order against inflation, virtually freezing all prices and tightening barriers against wage increases, sends Food Administrator Chester Davis, left, and Price Administrator Prentiss Brown, right, into frequent conferences in Washington as they attempt to determine their new policies. Most urgent problems were those of livestock ceilings and grade labelling.

PRESS BARRED FROM ALLIED FOOD MEETING

Delegates of United Nations To Meet Secretly at Hot Springs, May 18.

ROOSEVELT GETS WISH

Reporters to Be Admitted Only to Formal Opening And Closing Ritual.

By LYLE C. WILSON
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — The state department announced today that the United Nations food conference would begin May 18 at Hot Springs, Va., coincident with authentic information from other sources that the press will be barred from the conference hotel except for a couple of formal, open meetings.

This is in conformity with President Roosevelt's "hope" that the representatives of the United States and 37 other nations might pursue their food negotiations without interruptions by reporters.

It is in marked contrast to the assurances given questioners last week by Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information, that he expected newspaper reporters to have access to the conference hotel.

Today's announcement postponed from April 27 to May 18 the conference meeting with an explanation that transportation of delegates to the United States made the delay necessary.

The state department announcement said that newspaper reporters would be admitted merely to the opening and closing conference sessions. Michael J. McDermott, veteran and able chief of the department's division of current information, has been designated conference press relations officer.

McDermott will establish press headquarters in Hot Springs but the conferees will be housed and the meetings will take place in the Homestead, a nearby hotel, from which newspapermen and radio representatives will be barred except on the first and last conference days.

Again Threaten to Cut Off Rommel As Axis Flees Up Coast Under Constant Attack From Air; Montgomery Asks 'Dunkirk.'

(By United Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Allied armies plunged through crumbling Axis defenses on all Tunisian fronts today, driving the enemy from the important coastal cities of Mahares and Sfax and from the mountain strongholds of Pichon and Fondouk in an all-out offensive that again threatened to cut off the fleeing Africa corps of Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Spurred on by an order from Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery to smash on to Tunis and "drive the enemy into the sea," the British Eighth army surged up the coastal road toward Sousse at the rate of more than 15 miles a day to seize both Mahares and Sfax and pursue the beaten enemy on toward the north. Axis troops were under constant aerial attack.

The British spearhead entered Sfax—which had been furiously bombed by the Allied air forces—at 8:15 a. m. today after covering the 22 miles from Mahares in approximately 19 hours.

At the same time, American and British armored forces and infantry on the central sector made a joint attack Thursday morning from the north on the village of Fondouk and a nearby mountain position held by the enemy. By noon they had achieved their objective, having driven the enemy from Fondouk as well as nearby Pichon.

The offensive operations were continued today in conjunction with advances by the British First army in northern Tunisia and by Americans forces pushing out from the Maknassy zone, south of Fondouk, in an effort to cut through the last enemy mountain defenses and strike Rommel's flank on the coastal plains south of Sousse.

The sudden acceleration of Allied advances meant that Rommel was speeding up his flight to the strong positions around Tunis and Bizerte in the north, where he hopes to hold out for a long time. But Montgomery, in a message to his troops, said that if the collection of prisoners at the present rate continued the enemy "will soon have no infantry left to hold his positions" in the north.

"Let us make the enemy face up to and endure a first class Dunkirk on the beaches of Tunis," Montgomery said. "The triumphant cry now is: Forward to Tunis. Drive the enemy into the sea!"

Although Montgomery mentioned only 15,000 prisoners, the total number was well above that figure.

On the northern front, the British First army captured 1,000 Germans in stubborn fighting in hilly country where they have now advanced ten miles and freed the Allied communications lines to Medjez El Bab. The Americans and British in the south also took another 1,500 prisoners and large groups were being captured in mopping up operations. Five hundred other prisoners were taken around Fondouk.

County Orders 'Branding' of Cars; City Plan Still Shelved

Richland county commissioners today had passed a resolution by unanimous vote requiring all county-owned cars and trucks to be plainly marked as such.

The proposal is similar to that which was before city council recently and which was finally tabled without action. It was drawn up after it was charged city officials had been using city cars for private business.

The county order requires that all passenger cars and trucks be used only for county business and that each vehicle be marked as county-owned in a move to stop the use of public cars for private business.

The county order, which goes into effect immediately, was offered by Commissioner Ray Hout. Copies of the order will be sent to all county department heads who have charge of public vehicles.

Other counties and cities in the state have marked their cars for a number of years, eliminiating the practice of public officials and employes using them for their own purpose.

Commissioners today also had instructed County Engineer Howard Sword to survey the proposed site of the Trimble road grade elimination project. The plans call for a road re-location to avoid "Dead Man's Crossing" over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

POSTMEN GRIN

They'll Get $300 More Yearly Under New Pay Law.

Mansfield postmen were entitled o a million-dollar smile — or at east a $300 grin.

President Roosevelt signed a bill yesterday granting an average $300 a year increase for postal employes, effective until June 30, 1945. Fulltime employes are to get a flat $25 a month raise. The pay increase will not apply to all employes in the same way but will effect them according to the type of work they perform.

Approximately 93 employes of he Mansfield postoffice will be ffected by the new bill. Postmaster H. E. Homberger said hat the new bill will take the lace of the stop-gap legislation assed in January. The old bill hich expires April 30 made the 8-hour week mandatory with vertime pay for all hours work- over 40 a week.

Council Finally Clears Way for Can Collection

Making certain this time that the measure was labeled "emergency," city council in a seven-minute special session last night voted $1,000 to finance the tin can salvage drive which will get under way Monday in the city.

Council, in the only other business, placed the city garbage superintendent's job under civil service and changed his title to foreman of garbage disposal and chief sanitary plant operator.

The $1,000 was appropriated by council at Tuesday night's regular session, but it was found later by Council Clerk Robert Black that the ordinance was not passed as an emergency measure and the money couldn't be used for 30 days. This resulted in the special session call.

The emergency ordinance designated the tin can collection as necessary for the conduct of war.

Collections will be made Monday and Tuesday in the First ward. Wednesday and Thursday

MAKE PROGRESS

Miners, Operators Iron Out Points Before Recess.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Wage negotiations between the anthracite mine operators and the United Mine Workers Union were in recess today until next Tuesday. Both sides reported "rapid progress" toward reaching a new contract.

The skeleton form of the agreement already has been drafted with the last seven of the 21 demands made by the UMW ironed out and placed tentatively into the contract.

J. B. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Navigation Coal company, spokesman for the operators, indicated that the principal difficulty would be reaching an agreement on the miners' demands for a $2 a day wage increase, portal-to-portal basis for pay and unionization of all employes up to supervisors.

Schwab Studies Violations Pending Action; 2 Draw Fines at Shelby.

More than 20 violations reported during the city's first black-out Thursday night were being checked today by OCD Commander Jess J. Schwab before action is taken against the violators, while in Shelby two persons were brought into court for failing to abide by black-out rules.

County OCD Coordinator G. E. Kalbfleisch said violation reports for the Mansfield area were submitted to the council at a meeting late yesterday, but Commander Schwab asked for more time to investigate them before recommending action.

"Not more than three or four of them were wilfull violations," Judge Kalbfleisch said. "In most cases, city residents had left home and forgot to turn out their lights or failed to shield lights in their basements."

In his investigation, Commander Schwab will interview air raid wardens and patrolmen who turned in the reports, and then make his recommendations to the OCD council at another meeting scheduled for next week. The council will decide whether the violators shall be ordered into court.

Willard Seaman, Victim of Wasp Sinking, Succumbs

WILLARD — Mr. and Mrs. Vern Day were notified by the War department today of the death of their son, Second Class Seaman Loren Allen Day, 20, at a San Diego, Cal., hospital yesterday.

Seaman Day was a member of the crew of the Wasp when it was torpedoed and sunk last Sept. 15. Death was caused by pleurisy which resulted from swallowing oil when the ship went down, his parents were told.

He entered the service April 14, 1942. He had been confined to the hospital since the time of the sinking.

Besides his parents, he is survived by five sisters and two brothers and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Green, all of Willard.

A military funeral will be held here but arrangements are incomplete, pending the arrival of the body.

SAUSAGE SALES LAGGING BEHIND

Women Won't Spend Red Points For Products.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Sausage products are going begging in the butcher shops. Housewives won't spend their red ration coupons for them.

The Office of Price Administration revealed this today, adding that the situation was especially true in New England and the middle west where those foods are "backing up" on retailers.

The spokesman advised dealers to apply for permission to hold special sales, with both point values and prices cut, if sausage is piling up on them.

Rick Comes Home Monday for Talk Before Assembly

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Columbus - born World War I flying ace, comes home Monday night to address a joint session of the Ohio general assembly.

Rickenbacker was expected to arrive at 2:22 p. m. CWT Monday and spend several hours visiting close relatives in the city, including his two sisters, Mrs. R. W. Hanson and Mrs. Mary A. Pflaum, before making his appearance before the legislature at 9 p. m. CWT.

Because of the large crowd expected at the legislature, admission is by ticket only. Each legislator was given three tickets—one for himself and the others for friends. Rickenbacker's speech will last 30 minutes.

The address will be broadcast over the National, Columbia, Blue and Mutual networks.

BATTLE CRY: 'On to Tunis!' Montgomery Tells Eighth Army

By CLINTON GREEN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—"On to Tunis!" was sounded as the battle cry of the British Eighth army by its commander today.

In what was described as a "personal message from the Eighth army commander to be read out to all troops," Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery praised his men for the work they have done and called upon them to subject Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps to a "first-class Dunkirk."

"Our triumphant cry is now 'forward to Tunis!'" Gen. Montgomery's message said. "Let us drive the enemy into the sea."

Dated April 8, the message recalled that on March 20, before the Eighth army commenced the battle of the Mareth Line, Gen. Montgomery promised that three things would be done.

"First," he said, "we will deal with the enemy in the Mareth position. That was done between the 21st and 28th of March when we took 8,000 prisoners.

"Second, we would burst through the Gabes gap. That was done on April 6. The enemy was so unwise as to stand and fight us on the El Akarit position. He received a tremendous hammering and we took another 7,000 prisoners.

"Third, we would drive northward on Sfax, Sousse and finally Tunis. That is now in the process of being done and if we collect in prisoners at the present

RIPPED: New Guinea Japs Hit By 63,000 Rounds of Gunfire

(By Associated Press)

Allied warplanes poured 63,000 rounds of cannon and machine-gun fire into Japanese positions in northern New Guinea and blasted nine enemy bases in the islands above Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The heaviest assault fell upon the Madang area, along the Japanese supply route to their base at Salamaua and Lae, and dispatches said the raiders left big fires raging and that a single fighter group made 27 strafing bases over the region.

Other targets included points of increasing Japanese activity as the enemy tightened his grip on the South Seas area.

On the Burma front, British headquarters announced that there was "nothing to report" in fighting north of the Mayu peninsula, where the Japanese have been driving toward the Burma-India frontier.

By contrast, imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted that Japanese troops had encircled British-Indian forces at the frontier and

MILD RECOVERY TENDENCY SEEN IN STOCK MART

Individual Income Increased 29 Per Cent In February Over Previous Year.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Mild recovery tendencies appeared in today's early stock market transactions but many leaders continued to point lower.

At an active opening fractional advances were posted for Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Steel, Southern Railway and Great Northern. On the losing end were American Telephone, Pennsylvania, North American, Chesapeake & Ohio and Packard.

Boardrooms noted the compilation of the department of commerce indicating income payments to individuals in February were 29 per cent above those of the 1942 month and were 96 per cent greater than in the 1939 period. The total of $10,428,000,000 was under the January figure of $10,725,000,000, due to fewer dividend payments, but the decline was less than seasonal.

PRESS BARRED FROM MEETINGS

Roosevelt Gets Wish to Hold Allied Food Conference 'Without Interruption.'

also is an assistant to the director of economic stabilization, will be chairman of the United States delegation which has been designated by President Roosevelt.

Other members will be Undersecretary of Agriculture Paul H. Appleby, Assistant Secretary of Commerce W. L. Clayton, Surgeon General Thomas Parran, and Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

The delegates will be accompanied by technical experts.

"It is anticipated," the state department announcement said, "that the conference will be as informal as possible, and in view of the fact that it will be primarily a meeting of technical experts, most of the discussions will take place in technical sections or committees."

Mr. Roosevelt revealed secrecy plans at a recent press conference, indicating the opinion that conditions prevailing at this year's Casablanca conference were more suited to the purposes of the food conference than an open gathering where reporters would have free access to the site of the meeting and to the adjacent grounds.

The office of censorship evidently has kept out of the food conference controversy within the administration family circle. The code of censorship contains a provision on the basis of which news reporters could have been requested to limit or abandon all coverage of the Hot Springs meeting.

But for reasons unexplained the White House decided to handle this one simply by ordering the physical exclusion of reporters from the conference site except during the opening and closing sessions. Both Davis and White House Secretary Stephen T. Early are understood to have urged Mr. Roosevelt to permit reporters the customary freedom to live among and to meet freely with conference delegates except during executive sessions and closed committee meetings.

There had been some hope that the exclusion order would be relaxed or abandoned until today's state department announcement which clearly stated that newsmen with special credentials—would be permitted to contact the conference directly only at the opening and closing sessions.

The United Press applied on April 5 to George Slosson, jr., manager of the Homestead, for reservations for its staff of conference reporters. On April 7, Slosson replied:

"Regret reservations here for period of forthcoming United Nations food conference beyond our jurisdiction. You will have to apply to state department."

An immediate application to the state department brought only the information that it would now accept applications for credentials. But reporters will be housed at a distance from the Homestead and the proposed credentials will not permit them to contact any delegates except on two specified days unless the delegates themselves leave the guarded hotel grounds and seek out reporters on neutral ground.

APPREHEND BOYS

Officers Find Them Throwing Stones at Windows.

Three youthful stone throwers were reprimanded by juvenile officers and deputy sheriffs yesterday after having broken several windows in a new home on Millsboro road.

Final disposition of the cases of two 12-year-old boys and a 13-year-old lad, depends upon whether or not the property owner files charges, the officers said.

COUPLE KILLED

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Phillips, 15 North Mulberry street, were called to Columbus today by the death of Mrs. Phillips' brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Moore, in an automobile accident.

Moore, 48, an oil firm salesman, and his wife, Margaret, 45, were killed when their automobile collided with a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train.

DAVIS DENIES CHARGES OF PLANE POOL

Reports M'Arthur to Get More Combat Craft, Says Those In U. S. Now In Use.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — War Information Director Elmer Davis last night rebuked "an authoritative source" at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters for charging that there were 10,000 idle combat planes in the United States.

"It simply isn't so," said Davis in his weekly radio review. "The exact number of combat planes in this country is of course a military secret. But they are not lying idle."

He said it was natural that MacArthur and Prime Minister John Curtin should want more planes in Australia.

"Gen. MacArthur is going to get more planes—Secretary (of War Henry L.) Stimson promised that yesterday," Davis said. ". . . but other fronts need planes too; if a lot of them hadn't been sent to Africa, our recent victories might well have been defeats."

Davis' statement was precipitated by news dispatches from MacArthur's headquarters which said that authoritative sources there had charged that there was a "reserve pool" of 10,000 combat planes in the United States over and above lend-lease commitments and assignments to foreign fronts. The dispatch pointed out that four aides of MacArthur recently had returned to Australia after a trip to Washington to seek more supplies for the southwest Pacific.

Davis pointed out that many combat planes were needed in this country:

"Some of them are needed for the sea frontier—the steady patrolling to watch for submarines, which have again begun to appear, one or two of them, in the neighborhood of our coasts, and which might appear in larger numbers if there were no air force at home to hit back at them.

"Other combat planes in this country are just about to be sent off to the fighting fronts.

"Still others — a considerable number—are used for training.

"That is what most of those so-called idle planes in this country are doing — they are being used by the men who are going to fly and fight them, but have got to learn how first."

STAGES REVOLT

GOP Threatens to 'Fire' Panel On Pay-Go Tax Action.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— House Republicans today threatened a move to discharge the house ways and means committee from further consideration of the pay-as-you-go tax question unless immediate action is forthcoming.

Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts said the minority would resort to whatever methods are necessary to get action.

His assertion followed a tentative agreement by Democratic leaders not to reopen the pay-as-you-go fight on the floor unless the Republicans agree to compromise for something less than the total forgiveness feature of the once-defeated Carlson-Ruml plan.

"I insist the house has a right to decide this question in whatever manner it sees fit," Martin said. "The leadership has no right to abridge that right."

Lucas High School Cage Players Get Letters at Banquet

Seventeen pupils in Lucas high school received letters for basketball participation last night following a community banquet sponsored for the sports department by the Lucas Mothers and Community clubs.

Six of the letters presented were to varsity players: William Kaylor, William Hammett, Robert Barger, Basil Swain, jr., James Harvey and John Welly. Seven were "second team" letters, a smaller gold "L" on a black basketball, given to: Maurice Callahan, Eugene Stake, Lester Maglott, Robert Archart, James Metcalfe, Charles Hunt and Charles Stephenson. The remaining four letters were presented to Eugene Echelbarger, team manager, Gilbert Frontz, Mildred Sphon and Margaret Briner, cheer leaders.

Completing the evening's program was the showing of seven reels of films, including sports shorts and "Aesop Fables" comedies, and a ball game between a seniors and alumni squad and underclassmen won the game.

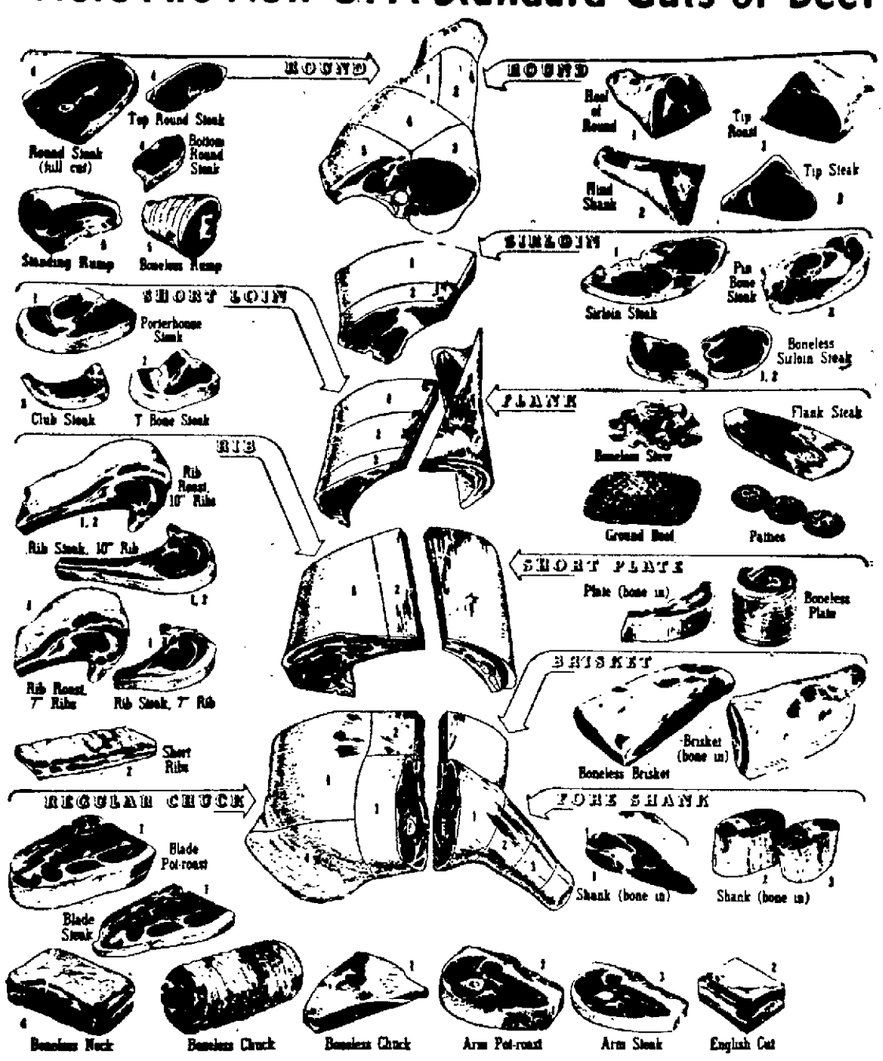
YANK RAIDS STOP REVOLT

Officer Says Thailand, Burma Unrest Growing.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An army pilot who returned recently from China reported today raids by the U. S. army 14th airforce "are fomenting revolt and unrest among the Japanese-dominated people of Thailand, Burma, French Indo-China and enemy-held areas in China."

Maj. Albert J. Baumler, of Trenton, N. J., told the war department: "After one of the raids, Siamese troops revolted, killed their Japanese officers and made an effort to join the Chinese forces."

Here Are New OPA Standard Cuts of Beef



So that you'll get the beef that you pay the price for it, OPA orders the standard cuts shown above to start with the new retail ceiling prices on April 15. Standardized retail cuts have been established by OPA not only on beef but also on veal, lamb and mutton. Pork is already under retail control. The beef chart above shows, down the middle the standardized wholesale cuts and, at the sides, the standardized retail cuts taken from each. In addition, all meat in retail stores must be marked with its OPA grade. Official OPA chart.

control such exempted products as wheat, cotton, fresh fish, apples, other fresh fruits as they come into season, possibly pears, peaches and cherries, certain oil bearing seeds and milk for manufacturing purposes.

Brown's decision to control cotton and wheat prices indicated that the government would follow a policy of including federal benefit payments to farmers in determining parity prices. No ceilings can be placed on the major farm crops until they reach parity. But with those payments included both cotton and wheat prices exceed parity.

The congresional farm bloc, opposed to the inclusion of federal payments, jammed through the Bankhead bill barring this practice. The measure was vetoed by the president and was recommitted to the senate agriculture committee.

Under study for dollar and cents prices are many commodities whose prices are controlled at the processor level through fixed prices based on cost and a mathematical mark up for profit purposes. These products include sugar, bulk tea, milled rice, Maine and California sardines, eggs, butter, live and dressed poultry, cornmeal, canned fruits and vegetables.

Byrnes Faces Tough Tangle of Problems

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)— Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes faces the toughest collection of problems probably ever handed to any government official beneath the rank of president.

Byrnes, veteran of 25 years in congress and former supreme court justice, is the working boss of the administration's battle against inflation.

Mr. Roosevelt's latest executive order tightening the present economic controls means some increase in Byrnes' powers. Particularly does the order add to Byrnes' headaches because now he, instead of the president, will decide borderline and hardship cases in which the office of price administration or the war labor board are involved.

The effect of Byrnes' new powers will be to screen Mr. Roosevelt still further from time-consuming detail work, thus giving the president a greater opportunity to concentrate on his job as commander-in-chief.

Byrnes and the president work together closely, conferring at frequent intervals — sometimes several times a day. Byrnes makes his own decisions on most economic steps on a mechanical nature but talks to the president before making a major policy change.

KILL AMERICANS

LONDON —(INS)— The Moscow radio said today that the Germans had hanged six American born colonists on a collective farm near Salsk and had wrecked a settlement started in 1933 by farmers from Kirkland, Wash.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Meet Sunday — The Mansfield Student Music club will meet at 3 p. m. Sunday at the home of Mrs. E. D. Gibson, 282 West Fourth street. "Opera Backstage" will be the topic discussed by Miss Thelma Reed.

Escapes Injury — Cyrus Swisshelm, Hillsboro, Highland county, escaped injury last night when his truck hit a guard rail post on U. S. Route 30, two miles west of Hayesville, state patrolmen reported. The truck was slightly damaged.

Gets $50 Gift — The Mansfield Garden center today had received a $50 cash gift from the Johnny Appleseed Garden club to help finance Victory garden work. The funds will be used for educational work and in providing information for amateur gardeners.

Finds Bicycle — Reported stolen three days ago from the Y.M. C. A., a bicycle owned by Charles Fiddler, rear 176 South Diamond street, was found yesterday at the rear of the Diemer service station on Park avenue west and returned to the owner.

Child Bitten — Mrs. C. K. Glasgow, 355 West Sixth street, reported to police last night that her daughter, Jeanette, 5, was bitten on the leg by a neighbor's dog as she played in the yard. The animal was tied when he attacked the child, police said. A physician treated the wound.

Find Lost Children — Mrs. Mary Allen Beck, 116 West Fifth street, called police yesterday when two girls, both two years old, came to her home and reported they were lost. The children, Lois Westfall, 181 North Mulberry street, and Delores Leddey, 185 North Mulberry street, were taken home by officers.

Rent Office To Move — This week-end will see the removal of the area rent office from its present location in the R. B. Gardner automobile agency on Park avenue west to new quarters in the Warner building on North Main street in the same suite with the ration board. The area rent office will be open for business Monday morning in the new location.

Awaits Committment—Because of overcrowded conditions in a state institution, Richard Lee, 27, of 137 Oakenwald avenue, is held in the Richland county jail awaiting committment. Lee was indicted at the recent session of the grand jury on a charge of breaking and entering with Judge C. E. Kalbfleisch ordering him committed to a state institution following a mental examination. The News-Journal erroneously reported Lee as a colored man in its account of grand jury action on April 2.

SENT TO O.S.R.

Brothers Sentenced For Firing School and Burglaries.

The Hensger brothers, convicted Parma arsonists and burglars, were due to arrive at the Mansfield reformatory today to begin indeterminate terms for setting fire to a Cleveland junior high school and burglarizing homes in the Cleveland area.

The brothers, Henry, 17, and Robert, 16, terrorized the city for weeks before police captured them after one youth shot their mother in the back. They confessed setting fire to four school buildings and participating in more than 40 burglaries.

Juvenile Judge Harry L. Eastman gave them the maximum penalty, ordering that they remain in the reformatory until they are 21. He criticized local and state agencies for failing to provide proper supervision for children from broken homes. A 12-year-old companion of the pair was sent to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

ANTI-RACKET BILL BOOSTED

Senate Supporters Demanding Quick Action as House Passes Measure.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Demands for speedy senate consideration of the Hobbs anti-racketeering bill arose from senate backers of the measure today following passage of the legislation by the house.

Sen. Holman (R) Ore., sponsor of similar legislation in the past, planned to ask that hearings on the bill be held forthwith while labor interests girded for a showdown fight on charges that the measure would imperil labor's right to strike and to bargain collectively.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Hobbs (D) Ala., would provide jail terms up to 20 years and possible fines of $10,000 for interference with interstate commerce by striking labor unions.

The house approved the measure 207 to 107 late yesterday, the more than two-to-one vote marking the first setback for organized labor in the 78th congress. The bill grew out of a supreme court decision that the 1934 anti-racketeering act was faulty and was designed to remedy this defect.

Labor leaders have opposed the bill on grounds that it would interfere with labor's rights under the Clayton, Norris-LaGuardia, railway mediation and national labor relations acts, but the house passed a judiciary committee amendment to the Hobbs bill to safeguard these provisions.

Nothing in the act shall be construed to "repeal, modify or affect" labor's rights under the four laws, the amendment stated.

M'GREGOR VOTES 'NO'

Representative J. Harry McGregor, congressman from the 11th district, which includes Richland county, was among Ohio congressman who voted against the anti-racketeering bill. Those who favored it were: Brehm, Brown, Clevenger, Elston, Griffiths, Hess, Jeffrey, Jones, Smith, Vorys, Weichel. Others against: Bender, Bolton, Jenkins, Lewis, Ramey, Rowe. Democrats against: Crosser, Feighan, Kirwan.

Council Finally Clears Way for Can Collection

in the Second ward, Friday and Saturday in the Third ward, April 19 and 20 in the Fourth, April 21 and 22 in the Fifth, and April 23 and 24 in the Sixth.

Only shiny cans that have been prepared properly and placed in containers at the curb will be picked up by the city truck. Ends of the can must be removed and they must be flattened.

Russell Porch, First ward councilman, who sponsored the civil service measure, said L. L. Linham, garbage department superintendent, had requested that the post be placed under civil service.

If Linham qualifies under civil service regulations, his job will be removed from politics and he will be in line to retain it indefinitely regardless of a change in the city administration.

He has been in service with the garbage and sewage disposal departments for 30 years of the past 34 in Republican and Democratic administrations.

Mayor W. J. Locke said today he wanted to "study the ordinance and find out what Linham plans to do" before he signs the measure.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Finally it has been settled that the United Nations food conference will be open to newspaper correspondents in the manner that has traditionally been accorded the free press in Democratic countries.

But it was a battle. Mr. Roosevelt came back from Casablanca very much smitten with the way complete secrecy simplified the conference. Newspaper reporters were not allowed in the vicinity. A complete military blackout was maintained until the end, when reporters were flown in for a staged news conference at which no questions could be asked.

Clapper

Nobody could complain about that procedure at such a completely military conference as Casablanca. But when Mr. Roosevelt began to map out the first United Nations conference, to be held toward the end of this month and to concern food, he thought it would be a grand idea to follow the method used at Casablanca. He would have the conference held at some isolated spot like Hot Springs, Va., where there is only one suitable hotel, and would admit no newspaper correspondents even to the hotel.

That was the original idea. Just a few days ago a newspaper correspondent representing one of the United Nations asked for hotel accommodations in the hotel at Hot Springs and was informed that the government had commandeered it beginning April 25.

Foreign correspondents have felt it was unreasonable on the part of this government to prevent them from having contact with the delegations from their own countries. They did not lodge a formal protest, but they complained individually to OWI.

Elmer Davis and the whole OWI have been strongly opposed to keeping the food conference closed. Mr. Davis has had several discussions about it at the White House. He was having trouble getting the conference opened up. Prospect that a most bitter objection would be made by the press if the plan were carried through, finally caused the White House to agree to allow the press to cover the conference in the way that hundreds of conferences have been reported in the past.

There is no reason why this conference should be held in secret.

Newspapers want nothing more than has been customary in all conferences. Of course closed sessions of committees will be necessary. Everybody recognizes that in discussions and negotiations there must be executive sessions so that everyone can talk it out without having a gallery listening in. But the newspapers do want the usual opportunity to talk with delegates and to report independently on what is going on.

Some high OWI people felt strongly that it would have been a terrible mistake to close up this first United Nations conference. Reasons offered to justify closing this conference could have been cited with equal logic to justify exclusion from subsequent non-military conferences.

The issue is fortunately settled now in a completely satisfactory way. It is disturbing that it was ever raised—but perhaps it was brought up without having been thought through. Mr. Roosevelt is most anxious, as he should be and as most of us are, that the United Nations get off to a satisfactory start in its first conference. I think Mr. Roosevelt was mistaken in his judgment as to how to do it. He has now acted on wiser second thought.

A dangerous precedent has fortunately been avoided. We can hope now that traditional free press coverage will obtain at the countless United Nations conferences that are to come—for many years, I hope.

We have insisted upon the free press being allowed to continue to function as usual where no requirements of security make secrecy necessary. But having so insisted, we are under even more obligation than usual to justify that independence and freedom by responsible and understanding reporting and comment, and to avoid malicious and troublemaking activity. The old distinction between liberty and license is very much to the point in this instance.

CHECK ON WAR DEPARTMENT'S DEFERMENTS

Congressmen Report 23,000 Civilian Workers Freed From Service by Army.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Figures presented to congress on the eve of a general revision of the entire selective service system disclosed today that the war department itself has obtained draft deferments for more than 23,000 of its civilian workers.

The war department, according to a special intergovernment report, has more than 800,000 male civilian employes not in khaki uniform, most of them working in arsenals.

Information on the number of deferments it has obtained was being furnished to the Costello committee of the house, which is investigating reported draft dodging by government workers. It also was in the possession of the special committee composed of representatives of the war manpower commission, the civil service commission and selective service. The committee was appointed to work out a uniform system for handling deferments of key government workers.

Most of the deferments given to war department civilian workers were for employes engaged in actual war production in government-owned arsenals, and those workers were highly skilled technicians.

There was no criticism by members of the Costello committee over the deferment of technicians and other skilled workers. However, some members declared that they would closely scrutinize the draft status of the 4,000 clerks and so-called administrative personnel.

Meanwhile, war manpower commission and national draft officials prepared to issue a joint announcement tomorrow or Monday in which the draft machinery will be streamlined, and Class 3-B completely abolished. Selective service spokesmen warned against speculating on the new draft classifications to be established, fearing that widespread confusion would result

It was reliably reported that all single men will be reclassified. Thus many single men now in 2-A or 2-B may be shifted back into 1-A to be available for immediate induction.

ASSEMBLY TO ADJOURN IN MAY, BELIEF

Bricker Bow to House on Tax Repealer Speeds Adjournment Chance.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Governor Bricker's willingness to accept the rebuke of house Republicans who killed his proposed repeal of the sales tax on restaurant foods has eliminated one stumbling block to early adjournment of the legislature, but several other major problems must be untangled.

Bricker's statement that he would insist upon preservation for post-war use of the $8,000,000,000 to $10,000,000 in sales tax revenues which will pour into the treasury because of continued taxes on foods and prescription medicines generally was well-received by Republicans in the capitol.

But Democrats suggested his inaugural proposal of the tax reduction had been a grand-stand play which he failed to follow with serious insistence that the reduction be enacted.

Senate Democratic Leader William Boyd, Cleveland, said his experience in the legislature made him believe that Bricker usually got what he wanted from the assembly, and he questioned whether the governor had made any "sincere attempt" to push the repealer.

Assembly veterans today were willing to settle for adjournment by May 15. The senate probably will complete action on the $366,000,000 appropriation bill by May 1, but if past sessions are any guide, conflicts between house and senate versions of the spending bill will require a conference committee for settlement.

Other thorny problems still to be settled include differences between the house and senate regarding distribution of increased school funds, the Ross bill to relax standards of female and child labor, and the bill of Sen. Frank E. Whittemore to increase assessments on war industries to build up post-war reserves in the state unemployment compensation fund.

The worst snarl of the session developed when a senate caucus deadlocked over the issue of a 48-versus-52 hour maximum work week.

As labor groups presented a united front on the Ross bill, senators became impatient at the apparent inability of business groups to agree among themselves what they wanted.

You Can't Print That!

(A compendium of tales that can't be told with names, because they're too true to print. If you find in them any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead — you've probably guessed right!)

THIS little triangle involves a married couple and one of the best known showgirls in the cafe set. Just for the records we'll call the showgirl Mabel and the husband and wife Jim and Katherine, because nothing could be further from their real names.

At present writing, Mabel is prancing in a floor show in a mid-western city, and every night Jim calls her on the telephone. When the line is busy, he flies out as fast as a plane and a priority can take him.

Kilgallen

For the past two years Jim has been trying to get Katherine to grant him a divorce. He is one of the wealthiest men in the country and he has offered her a settlement that would dazzle most unhappy wives into unconsciousness—but not Katherine. Because Jim also bears one of the proudest names in the nation's history, and she likes being called Mrs. Jim—aside from which she can spend all the money she wants to, anyway.

Jim knows this. That's why he's been seen in public with Mabel, deliberately, and now and then when he's had enough champagne to make him brave he tells gossip columnists and friends who are sure to prattle that he and Katherine are divorcing. Editors won't print the story without Katherine's confirmation, because Mr. and Mrs. Jim are important people, and you can bet they won't get a confirmation from Katherine. She just says, "Ridiculous, we're very happy," and dares Jim to contradict her.

(But you can't print that. You see, Katherine's a nice girl. She just can't realize that Jim and Mabel are really in love—because, you see, she didn't marry Jim for love herself. Unless you count love of prestige and the few million dollars that go with being Mrs. Jim.)

Peggy is one of Hollywood's best known glamor girls. Immediately after Pearl Harbor she gave up all her extra-curricular activities to devote her free moments to war work. Fervently patriotic, she told her studio bosses at one point that she was going to quit films and enlist in the WAAC—and she was so sincere that it took a lot of persuasion to change her mind.

When the Hollywood Canteen was launched, Peggy could be seen any evening washing dishes, waiting on tables, making sandwiches and dancing with the men in uniform. Her efforts were really conspicuous in their tirelessness and sincerity.

Several months ago, when the OPA disclosed that canned goods would be rationed, Peggy got panicky. She went out and purchased 310 000 worth of canned goods—which is a lot of tin—and had it shipped to her San Fernando valley home.

Last week, while she was on duty at the canteen, a wounded marine just back from Guadalcanal got talking to her about life in those Pacific islands of war, because she's the sympathetic type and the kind who makes you feel like unburdening. He told her about a couple of battles, and he told her how for the short but uncomfortable period his battalion has come close to starvation because a supply of canned goods which should have arrived had been delayed.

When she heard this, Peggy's heart did a double flip.

That night, the marine's story kept entering her mind and she couldn't sleep.

The next morning, she divided the canned goods three ways, and sent it to the three largest canteens in the country. With each shipment went an anonymous note asking that there be no publicity about the donation.

(But you can't print that. It might make Peggy lose some of her hard-earned popularity, and she doesn't deserve to, because she realized her mistake and corrected it. She probably has a lot of fans who could do the same thing—but won't.)

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—We ran into a couple of "streamline" items t'other day. They concern Sonja Henie, who skates, and Laird Cregar, who acts and gains weight.

Sonja has changed her contour again. After a roly-poly start in her first picture, seven years ago, she streamlined down to a point where lots of folks thought she'd gone a mite too far. Now, back from another tour to start "Winter Time," she isn't thin and yet not fat either.

Coons

She's going to do more skating in "Winter Time" than in most of her earlier films but it will be a different kind of skating, for the most part.

"There will be less fast, acrobatic skating," Miss Henie explained. "John Brahm, the director, has convinced me that a change of pace might be appreciated by the people who go to theaters. He has worked out an idea for skating numbers that will flow smoothly. It's a change and it's going to be interesting, anyway."

Cregar, looking not quite like a svelte yet, lost 47 pounds on some kind of special hospital diet. When he drops 28 more, he says he'll call it a day. Boy, we'd call it a miracle.

Cregar doesn't stay in the hospital 24 hours a day. He gets afternoons off (to see movies) and a couple of evenings away from the institution (to see movies). But he's always there for the meals because, it seems, removing 75 pounds from a frame that has gotten into the habit of carrying 300 pounds is a pretty delicate job. (Shucks, why didn't you hire Henry Kaiser, Larry?)

Why is he reducing? So he can weigh in at what the doctors consider will be his right ringside weight to undergo a major operation.

Annabella says one of the things for which she is most grateful in America is that the guns used in movies usually have silencers. She's been going through weeks of plain and fancy (mostly the latter) shootin' in "Bomber's Moon" and it's getting on her nerves. Normally the reports from the guns would be smashing through the sound stages but in this instance the silencers reduce them to little phtts.

Annabella writes to her handsome hubby, Ty Power, U. S. M. C., every day. Nothing important, just chit-chat and studio gossip. "It seems such a little thing to do for a soldier and it makes me feel closer to him," she says.

Nope, Ty doesn't write Anna any U. S. M. C. gossip stuff. He doesn't have time. He did mention that a certain weapon he lugs around daily gets awfully heavy by 5 p. m.

Where is movie talent coming from in the future? Purely a rhetorical question in order to get into Charles Coburn's quote:

"Acting is a profession. It has to be learned. Therefore, why shouldn't acting be taught where young people study for other professions—namely, in the colleges?"

Seems like a good idea, folks. Let's get together for an evening of ale and acting some night, Charlie.

FIVE ARRESTED

Face Charges of Speeding, Reckless Driving.

Five motorists were arrested for traffic violations in the Mansfield area yesterday, state patrolmen reported today.

Emil A. Mannhardt, Delaware, forfeited $16.30 bond when he failed to appear in municipal court this morning to answer a charge of reckless driving on U. S. Route 42 last night.

Edward P. Hannah, Akron, and Raymond Halter, Cleveland each signed waivers and posted $16.30 in municipal court after being arrested for speeding on U. S. Route 42, patrolmen said.

Mrs. Bernice Vanderbilt, Lexington, was fined $5 in municipal court this morning for failing to have an operator's license. The fine was suspended when Mrs. Vanderbilt agreed to obtain a license.

Everett Murray, Greenup county, Ky., payed $5 and costs in Mayor Thomas Zeigler's Bellville court for failure to have an operator's license. He was arrested on State Route 13 near Bellville.

Farm Bureau Head Declares Clock Change Speeds Food Production.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's shift to "slow" time is proving beneficial to farmers seeking to increase food production, President Perry L. Green of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation reported today.

"Maximum production of food on the farms," he said, "is considerably enhanced by the time change. I do not believe that any business or government leader who understands the farmers' difficulties in relation to fast time will further oppose the recent action of our state legislature."

Enactment of legislation changing Ohio from war time to hour-slower time raised a storm of protest from urban centers and only Columbus and Dayton among larger cities, turned back their clocks.

Green explained "fast" time hampered farmers because "they couldn't get into their fields until late in the forenoon because of darkness or dew and workers had to halt field operations to conform with numerous other activities in the area important to agricultural pursuits."

Murray D. Lincoln, farm bureau executive secretary, asserted "the war will be won on the food that American farmers raise this summer," and urged agriculturalists to seek solution of their problems in neighborhood groups under a self-help program recently outlined by seven farm organizations and service agencies.

John Sims, operating manager of the Farm Bureau Cooperative association, urged farmers to use the proper grade of fertilizer for their soil and crops to meet 1943 food product on quotas.

DECISION UPHELD

Appeals Court Affirms Juvenile Judge in Delinquency Case.

Juvenile Judge Stuart Cramer, in sentencing Elmer Geddes, Reform street, to one year in the Columbus workhouse and imposing a fine of $500 for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was upheld today in a decision by the district court of appeals.

Geddes has been at liberty under $3,000 bond posted Dec. 29, when sentence was imposed in juvenile court. He will be committed to the workhouse Monday, Judge Cramer said.

Up and Down THE STREET

The rabies problem for Richland county farmers is not just confined to dogs. Foxes reported in great numbers in the Bellville-Butler vicinity are afflicted with the disease as well. Harry Darling found a paralyzed fox on his farm near Butler early this week. He destroyed it and a veterinary sent its head to Columbus for examination, the report of which showed it was afflicted with rabies. Foxes attack chickens and cattle.

The Easter bunny, that sly painter of eggs and sender of baskets filled with goodies, has had another task added to his list. It seems that one small Mansfield girl has him confused a bit with Santa Claus. Her letter to the bunny, which came to the Mansfield postoffice yesterday asked for black-toed buckle shoes, a coat, a dress, a necklace, a pocketbook and "something for my little brother."

George B. Sowers, native of Lexington and former employe of the Mansfield city engineering department, has been commissioned a major in the provost marshal general's office of the U. S. army, his friends here have learned. He expects to be called to duty about May 10. One of Sowers' two sons, John, 19, is receiving seaman training at the Great Lakes Naval Training station. For the past year the elder Sowers has been in the engineering department of a Cleveland steel plant and consulting engineer for federal construction projects in the Cleveland area.

Mansfield should follow the example of eastern cities in providing air raid shelters for dogs or otherwise care for them during black-outs, thinks Helen Upson Carpenter, 283 Park avenue west. During the Thursday night black-out, a dog, apparently frightened by the siren, came to her home and huddled in a corner on the porch until 11:30 p. m., she told The News-Journal today. In New York, where she spends a great deal of time, the public cares for dogs and pets during black-out tests to keep them off the streets and away from places where they might be injured, she said.

KNOX TELLS OF GROWING MIGHT

Says Fleet Tonnage to Swell 66 Per Cent This Year, Sights Victory.

(By Associated Press)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The United States, producing fighting ships on an heroic scale, is at the beginning of ultimate victory, says Secretary Knox.

The navy secretary, at a press conference last night, asserted the United States was "just getting away to a good start," and "we now are in a position to dictate where the fighting will take place."

"We are in the beginning of a situation which will lead to ultimate victory," Knox told the press conference.

At a rally opening the second war loan campaign, Knox told of the growing might of the nation's navy and said production of fighting equipment, mainly aircraft carriers and destroyer escorts, was on an "heroic scale."

He said the navy would complete more new fighting ships in 1943 than were in service at the end of 1942 and disclosed the fighting fleet's tonnage would increase 66 per cent this year, without allowing for probable battle losses.

Knox also told of navy production plans for next year, asserting "we will make further additions in 1944 to insure the obliteration of Japanese sea power and to sweep the German and Italian U-boats and surface ships from the seas."

He warned, however, "the worst of this war lies ahead of us," and that German under-sea power is "an ever-increasing peril."

To combat that and other perils, the navy secretary said, "our efforts this year will be marked by two special accomplishments upon which we have bent our energy and all our will—airplane carriers and destroyer escorts. . . . The number of carriers, both large and auxiliary, completed in 1943 will multiply many times our total carrier force at the end of 1942."

Fortunes of War Sometimes Odd as They Are Risky

LONDON — (U.P.) — A British seaman was sitting on the deck peeling potatoes when a wave swept him overboard. The next wave sat him right back aboard, still peeling.

A fellow taking a bath in London escaped uninjured when a bomb exploded outside but the bomb concussion knocked all the water from his tub.

These were two stories from a compendium of oddities on the war compiled today by reporters. Some others:

The corvette Nasturium collided with the merchant ship St. Johns, throwing the cargo vessel onto land where it hit an automobile.

Harry Griffith, RAF ferry pilot, fell out of his bomber seat but held on to the edge until the man piloting the plane dipped close to a snowbank. Griffith let go, landed unhurt.

CHILD, 2, DIES

Infant Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Neal Succumbs.

Barbara Jean Neal, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn A. Neal, 422 West Fourth street, died Friday at the home, following a brief illness.

Besides the parents, she is survived by one sister, Patricia Ann, and her grandparents, Mrs. Verna Case and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Neal, all of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 1 p. m. at the Wappner funeral home with Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

EIGHTH ARMY SEIZES SFAX; YANKS ADVANCE

Americans Take Pichon and Fondouk In New Threat To Rommel Escape.

hammering of Axis forces concentrating in the Bizerte-Tunis area.)

Good weather again favored Allied air operations and the enemy was pounded without interruption on the roads and at his main bases. In one engagement, Allied planes shot down eight of 16 enemy dive bombers.

Allied officials speculated on whether Rommel would decide to defend Kairouan, which lies between Fondouk and Sousse and is a Moslem holy city second only to Mecca. The Allies would prefer to avoid an attack on the city but if it is defended the attack will be made.

It is in the mountains above Sousse, 72 miles north of Sfax, that German Marshal Erwin Rommel is expected to make his next stand against the Eighth army driving up from the south and Anglo-America-French troops to the southwest.

The new Allied attack in the Fondouk area may force Rommel to attempt to break off even rear guard action in his race to reach the natural defenses of the mountains.

The British First army's 10-mile advance in the northern sector was over the rock-strewn, mined heights on an arc some 30 to 40 miles below Tunis and Bizerte. One thousand prisoners have been captured since the attack was launched on a broad front between Medjez El Bab and Munchar Tuesday.

Altogether, Allied communiques issued in the last three weeks have enumerated the capture of 21,550 prisoners in addition to referring vaguely to scattered groups of "many prisoners."

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, in a message to his Eighth army Thursday as it began to gather speed after breaking through the Axis defenses at Wadi Akarit, declared:

"If we collect prisoners at the present rate, the enemy soon will have no infantry left to hold his positions."

Today's communique reported that a General Mannerini and the headquarters of the Saharan group were captured Thursday.

The battle rapidly was moving to territory in northern Tunisia which holds some of the world's richest military history. It was from Carthage, only a few miles outside Tunis, that Hannibal, generally regarded as the first of all soldiers, was born. Carthage for a time ruled a large portion of Europe and only when completely destroyed by Rome, did it cease to threaten to rule the whole world.

The fall of Mezzouna would forge another junction of the Eighth army with American forces under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., and trap Axis troops that failed to escape from the Maknassy-El Guetar-Messouna triangle.

However, front dispatches indicated that most of the German and Italian rear guards left behind fled through the narrowing corridor in small groups before the junction was effected.

Rommel Flies Key Men From Tunisia

LONDON—(INS)—Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel is evacuating key military personnel and technicians from Tunisia by air, the London Daily Express reported today.

During the past few days, the report said, the Nazis have been operating a shuttle air service between Tunisia and Messina, daily on a round-the-clock basis. Speed night fighter planes' were said to have shot down many of the Axis transports.

In the past week, it was said, 50 per cent of Rommel's supplies have been arriving by transport planes, which return to Sicily often with men.

RAF Sets Fires In Duisberg, Ruhr Area

LONDON—(INS)—Heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force attacked the industrial city of Duisburg and other objectives in the German Ruhr valley last night, the air ministry announced today.

At the same time, it was disclosed, bombers of the coastal command raided enemy shipping in the Dutch coast and torpedoed a tanker.

Eight bombers and two coastal command planes are missing from these operations, the air ministry said.

De Gaulle Sends Best Wishes to Eisenhower

LONDON —(AP)— Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French, sent a message to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander of the Allied armies in North Africa, pledging that in the present North African struggle, "the finest good wishes of the French people go with you—with you personally and with the gallant Allied troops under your command."

The Fighting French leader's communication apparently was designed at dispelling the feeling in some quarters that there were differences between De Gaulle and the Allied command in North Africa.

that the group was being "annihilated."

In the skies, the British command said, RAF bombers pounded Japanese shipping and highway traffic in a series of raids over southern Burma and attacked Japanese-occupied villages on the Mayu peninsula along the Bay of Bengal.

Meanwhile, American P-40's shot up Japanese-held fort Bayard in Kwangchowan territory, on the south China coast, streaming 10,000 rounds of heavy caliber machine-gun bullets into the Japanese commander's headquarters, warehouses, airdrome, radio station and ground troops.

In the Solomons, the navy acknowledged the loss of a destroyer and three other vessels in a midweek Japanese air raid on shipping off Guadalcanal—and thus countered Tokyo's claim that 15 Allied warships and transports were sunk or damaged. The navy said 34 of 99 Japanese planes in the attack were shot down.

DR. ZWEMER TO GIVE SERMONS FOR HOLY WEEK

Princeton Professor Emeritus To Speak at Three of Four Services Planned.

RALLY PLANNED FOR LUTHERAN CONFIRMANDS

District Session to Be Held At First Church Sunday Afternoon.

Lutheran young people of the Mansfield district, who are members of senior confirmation classes, will participate in the annual rally for confirmands Sunday at 3 p. m. at First Lutheran church.

Dr. Paul P. Anspach, acting pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, Ashland, will be guest speaker. Registrations will be held at 2:30 p. m. All young people of the Mansfield area who are members of confirmation classes will attend.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN

Rev. J. Campbell White will speak on "Christ, the Comfort of Countless Souls" at Sunday services at 10:30 a. m.

Rev. White announced that three elders were re-elected for six-year terms at the annual business meeting Thursday. They were W. W. Crouch, Howard E. McClure, and F. T. Proctor. Additional elders named were Dr. W. F. Wilson, J. M. Finney and Harry Martin.

It was also announced that the church receipts for the period ending March 31 totaled $7,055.62. Of this total, $1,212.29 was given for missionary work at home and abroad, and $5,843.33 was spent locally, including $1,058 for redecoration of the church.

Rev. White said the present church membership was 173 and that the average contribution per member for the past year was $40.78. The average contribution to missionary work was $7. Arthur E. Courtney was re-elected chairman of the congregation and presided over this meeting. Four members of the board of trustees were also re-elected. They were Frank Williams, Frank Leavitt, Lynn Robenstein and Courtney.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN

In observing Passion Sunday at St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, pastor, will speak Sunday at 10:30 a. m., on the subject, "The Place of Christ Among Us." At the close of the Lenten vespers at 7:30 p. m., Roy E. Stroup of Shelby, will speak in behalf of the work of the Gideon society and the war effort.

Members of the senior confirmation class will participate in the district Confirmands' Rally Sunday at 3 p. m. in the First Lutheran church.

This week the Guild will meet on Tuesday at 7:45 p. m. in the church parlors, when Mrs. George Percy and Mrs. Charles Robertson will be hostesses. Mrs. Gilbert Schneider will be in charge of devotions.

Members of the Thursday Nighter group will hold a covered-dish supper and program on Thursday at 6:30 p. m. The Misses Louise Aungst and Katherine Miller will be in charge.

Women will sew at the Red Cross Friday, while the junior and senior choirs will rehearse Friday at 6:15 and 7 p. m. Classes in catechism will be conducted Saturday at 9 and 10 a. m.

ST. MARK'S LUTHERAN

For services Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Rev. C. A. Portz, pastor, will use for his subject, "The Son of Man Glorified." For the Wednesday Lenten services at 7:45 p. m. the subject will be "The Problem of Doubt."

The Guild will meet at the church Monday at 7:30 p. m. with Mrs. Earl Brandenberg and Mrs. Earl Kern, associate hostesses. The choir will meet immediately following the service Wednesday evening and the Catechetical classes Saturday at 10:30 a. m., and on Sunday at 9:30 a. m.

CHURCH OF BRETHREN

Women of the church will meet all day Wednesday with Mrs. Ralph Bowman, 27 State street. Following a covered-dish dinner, Mrs. Carl Stewart, president, will be in charge of the business meeting. Rev. Roland L. Showalter will speak on the subject, "The Leaven of Life," at Sunday services at 11 a. m. The Red Cross Sewing circle has adjourned for a two month period and will not meet until further notice.

CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in the Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday. It will have for the Golden text: "God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause his face to shine upon us; that thy way may be known upon earth, thy saving health among all nations" (Psalms 67: 1,2).

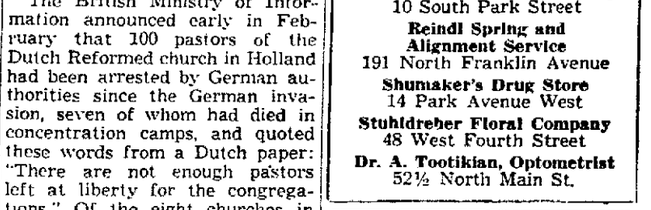
FIRST CHRISTIAN

Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger will speak on the subject, "What It Means To Be a Christian" at services at 10:30 a. m. Sunday.

The president says, "The young must be taught, and they must be taught truly, if the springs of democracy are to be kept untainted. The influence of the Scriptures in the early days of our Republic is plainly revealed in the writing and thinking of the men who made the nation possible. They found in the Scriptures that which shaped their course and determined their action."

When one thinks of the Scriptures and its teachings, the Church is considered as the one institution where the Scriptures are presented. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

D. Carl Yoder.



General Henri Honore Giraud has signed an order permitting Jews to enlist in the combatant units of the French army.

As a result of requisitioning by the Nazis of all church bells in Holland, phonograph records of their chimes, made before the bells were turned in, are now used to summon worshippers.

The First Presbyterian church of Middletown, N. Y., has accepted the invitation of the First Congregational church to merge their work for the duration. The Rev. Richard Billingsley, pastor of the Congregational church, is now an army chaplain.

The Ecumenical Commission for Prisoners of War in France reports a marked demand for religious literature in camps of refugees in France. In 1942 the commission sent more than 100,000 books, including 25,000 Bibles and Testaments. "Churches of all confessions continue to help Jews threatened by deportation. Large numbers are hidden and fed."

The British Ministry of Information announced early in February that 100 pastors of the Dutch Reformed church in Holland had been arrested by German authorities since the German invasion, seven of whom had died in concentration camps, and quoted these words from a Dutch paper: "There are not enough pastors left at liberty for the congregations." Of the eight churches in one city, for example, "only three have pastors."

Although wide publicity has been given to the rumor that Protestant missionaries are being barred from many of the countires in Latin America, the statement is false. It is a fact that many of these countries have passed new immigration laws since the beginning of the war in order to protect themselves against spies, but the restrictions have kept out few missionaries.

In Great Britain, there has arisen a group called the "Christian Frontier." The members, believing that the true frontiers of our time are spiritual and ethical, meet to study the nature of the forces in modern society and attempt to direct them toward a more nearly Christian order. These men and women, most of whom hold positions of responsibility, seek to render help to each other in arriving at important administrative decisions that will make their Christian beliefs effective.

A Clever Answer.

The colored preacher had finished his sermon and had asked that the collection be taken. A member rose to say, "Ah don' understan' this. You all said religion is free—free as the air we breathe and the water we drink. Now you'se ask for money." The pastor replied: "Brother, it is free—free as the air we breathe and the water we drink, but we pipes it to you; you have to pay for the pipes."

The attitude which you take toward your work does two things: it affects the way your work is done and, it affects you. If you have the attitude of being a forced laborer, your task is a menial one, giving you the spirit of a slave. If you learn to enjoy your work, then your task is a pleasure and you feel that it is fun to be thus engaged. Thomas Edison said, "I never did a day's work in my life; it has all been just play."

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, APRIL 10, 1943.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and this is a fine time to "see Mansfield first."

Apparently overlooked by congress is that there is no Republican way to steer a battleship and no Democratic way to combat a submarine.

Just for a change—those big, bright stars shining these nights are something to look at and think about. Nothing bothers them.

Effort To Correct Past Mistakes

CLEAR INTENT of President Roosevelt's "hold-the-line" order for a general price freeze, and wage stabilization within the Little Steel formula, is to maintain dollar value at about its present purchasing power instead of letting already noticeable inflation get entirely out of hand.

To what extent the admirable intent of this order may be defeated by the pressure and threats of minority groups cannot yet be determined and it is noted that John L. Lewis has already announced that he will continue his fight for $2 a day wage increase for mine workers.

This battle to break down the Little Steel wage formula must be considered no more than an opening wedge for many other at least equally meritorious demands for wage advances—all based on allegation of needs resulting from increases in living costs. In reverse, pleas for higher prices grow out of mounting costs attributed to higher wages, thus completing the vicious circle that eventually works to the detriment of those whom it seems to benefit and brings the destroying influence of runaway inflation to the entire country.

The whole problem of wages and prices, in its national application, is so vast and complicated that a high degree of public patience and co-operation will be required for successful solution. Taxation and compulsory savings also become a part of the puzzling situation and congress must be looked to for more intelligent action along these lines than has thus far been taken.

At a press conference yesterday President Roosevelt said: "We cannot afford to take further chances in relaxing the line. We already have taken too many."

Many will be inclined to believe that it is the "too many" chances already taken, in the matter of catering to favored groups, that are largely responsible for the obstreperous conduct of John L. Lewis and other inciters of disturbed labor conditions—but it is the present and future that must now be considered, and—fortunately—it is not yet too late to correct some costly past mistakes.

One Year After a Promise

SELDOM is such pathos found in a public statement as was contained in the message from General MacArthur on the occasion of yesterday's first anniversary of the fall of Bataan.

"A year ago today," he said, "the dimming light of Bataan's forlorn hope fluttered and died. . . . Our flag lies crumpled, its proud pinions spat upon in the gutter; the wrecks of what were once our men and women groan and sweat in prison toil. . . . I was the leader of that lost cause, and from the bottom of a seared and stricken heart I pray that a merciful God may not delay too long their redemption, that the day of salvation be not so far removed that they perish, that it be not again too late."

Looking back over a fateful year, in which much has been accomplished, it must surely be realized that far from enough has yet been done to offset the lack of foresight and preparedness which made possible such horrors as were enacted by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor, Bataan and elsewhere in the Pacific.

When MacArthur went to Australia from Bataan to take supreme command of United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific, he solemnly promised, "I will return." It is up to the United Nations—and primarily to the United States—to provide the military strength through which he can redeem that promise.

Opportunity Is Offered, That's All

MUCH has been said in recent weeks about the excellence of English used by Madame Chiang Kai-shek, and the extent of general education which she gained in American colleges. She is a native of China.

Paul Robeson comes to Mansfield Thursday evening, April 15, as the final attraction on the Civic Music association's course. Robeson won Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year at Rutgers; was commencement orator and pronounced "the perfect type of college man"; received the law degree from Columbia; his hobby is languages and he speaks Russian, Spanish and Chinese—in addition to English. He is a Negro.

A recent survey by the New York Times extended to 7,000 freshmen in 36 colleges and universities. It disclosed, among other things, that 25 per cent of these college "students" did not know that Lincoln was president of the United States during the Civil war; that only one in seven knew that McKinley was president during the Spanish-American war; that 29 per cent of them had never heard of John D. Rockefeller, and that few could name the three presidents who were assassinated. This takes no account of such occasional slips as thinking that Thomas Jefferson founded the Saturday Evening Post; that Alexander Hamilton invented the telephone and that Walt Whitman is a jazz orchestra leader. These young people are Americans who have completed their high school education and are deemed ready for college.

This mention is not intended to adversely criticize schools and colleges, or the children and young men and women who attend them. It is more designed to encourage thinking along the line that the extent of mental attainment is dependent on application and capacity, rather than on race or nationality—that "superiority" is not a matter of birth or ancestry but of individual accomplishments above the ordinary.

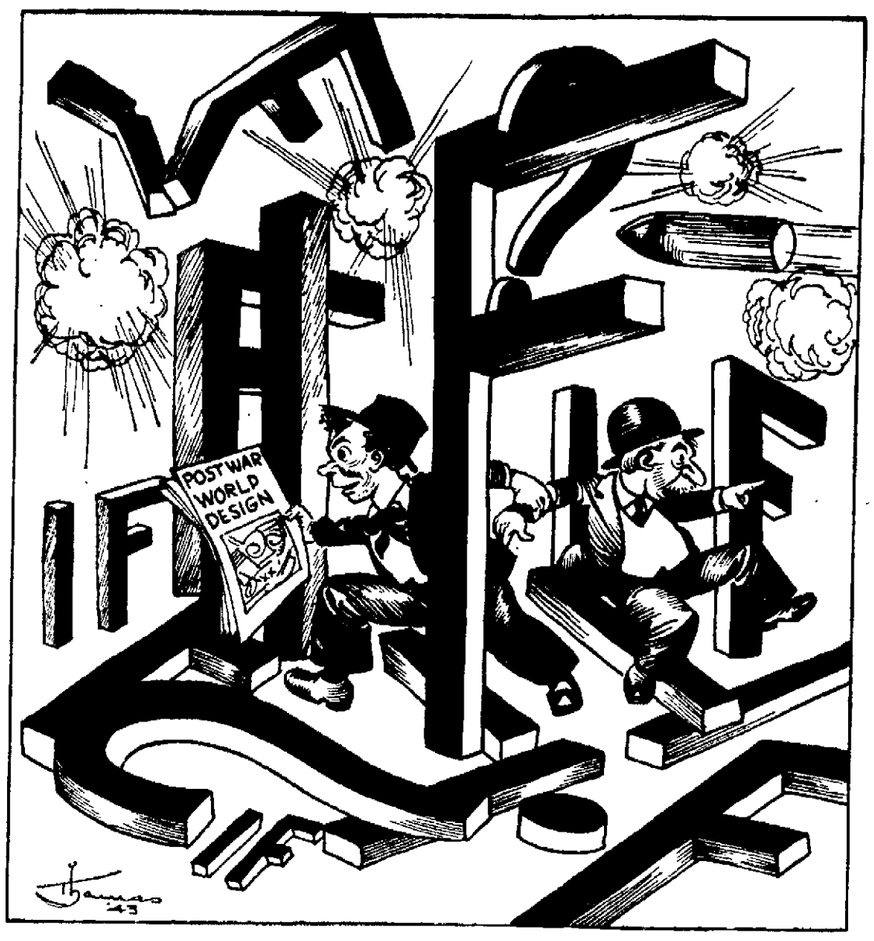
AMERICA OFFERS THE OPPORTUNITY TO ACQUIRE KNOWLEDGE—but no way has been found, or is likely to be found, to develop brains without expenditure of effort.

Information is given that by adding water to a dime's worth of soybean flour you get eight quarts of soybean milk—and then what have you?

"Beautiful but dumb" may also be found applicable to some of the postwar plans being evolved.

Don't blame the butcher—he's doing the best he can.

THE ROAD TO INTERNATIONAL HARMONY



Ample Supply of Machine Tools

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — At the moment there is actually OVER production of machine tools in this country. One would never think this in view of the clamor for more and more machine tools which has been making itself manifest. One would believe it even less to listen to anyone in the business. But that is the fact, nevertheless. Within a few weeks there will be terrific cancellations of orders for machine tools.

There are several answers. The most pleasant is that the machine tool industry has done so much better than anyone expected, and "anyone" includes experts in the industry as well as army and navy officials, that production has MORE than caught up with need.

Note that word "need." Not "demand." For right up to a few days ago the army and navy were still screaming for more and more tools. Orders in many war production lines have been curtailed, recently, without slowing up the existing surplus of machine tools. The answer to this has been that when Manufacturer A was told to cut his production he did not leave any machine tools idle. What he did was to swing back from three shifts to two, and in some instances to one.

ALL manufacturers know that they get more economical production from what might be called the regular shift than from either of the other two. The late night and early morning shift is the least economical. So, when directed to cut production, naturally the manufacturers try to concentrate production in the shift where costs are least.

This is sound economy, but NOT WAR ECONOMY.

What the government wants these manufacturers to do is to continue production in three shifts, but to use LESS machine tools. The government wants to be able to transfer machine tools from plants where they are not needed for full three-shift production to other plants.

As a result of these developments a conference was held a few days ago between government officials and a number of producers of machine tools. It was done in a rather sub rosa manner, quite unofficially. High officials just "happened" in on a party to which the machine tool big shots had been invited.

Then there were plenty of fireworks and the government officials had difficulty convincing the machine tool men, with whom they had been pleading since Pearl Harbor to make more and more, that they were beginning now to overdo the job.

ONE manufacturer spoke up and said he had six months business on his books right now. He said this in resisting the suggestion that he convert his plant to make something the government still wants badly, but something that he has not been making.

He was told crisply that his orders did not mean a thing—that most orders for machine tools would be cancelled in a few days, which would leave his plant flat unless it converted to something else.

A source normally highly accurate informed this writer that he did not think there would be any need for new machine tools except to make changes in existing products six months hence.

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Kin Who Clash

YOU DON'T NEED to love each member in your family. You shouldn't expect each one to love, understand or agree with you. It's impossible either way.

Do these statements jolt? Chances are they do. Yet they're as vital problems as any you'll ever face and you'd be saved much misery if you'd know the honest answer now.

From toddling days you're taught that family folk all love one another. They may not share an interest, taste or aim. If they were strangers you might draw a gun at sight. But, since you're in one family, you're supposed to dote as naturally as puppies bark or fishes swim. And if you don't, it's plumb against the natural plan.

So we grow. And gradually it dawns on us that Sister Ella isn't very strong for Brother Al, or Brother Jim thinks Sister Sue's a mess. Or Mother doesn't always get along with stuck-up Evaline. While Dad is plainly crazy over Betty Jo.

But this is not the way that you were taught! You try to think it's just imagining. Already you have found the world's a cold and lonely place. You want to feel love around you like a warm and friendly wall. You long to love and be loved in return. And yet the knowledge grows that, even in one's home, folks may be far apart as enemies.

Surely this is wrong! If your own heart were right there'd be no barrier. You'd have none of these petty spites and prickling feuds. Some one must be to blame!

So, to a sense of shock you add a sense of sin. You're sure you're queer and different, set apart from normal, healthy lives. Just yesterday you were as happy as a tiny new hatched wren. Your veins were bubbling with joy. But now your loneliness has grown 'til it festers in your heart. You hate each other—hate the ugly things you see. You note some spiteful motive in each trivial word or act. You wonder if there's only selfishness in life . . . if people ever really, truly love . . . if one dare trust? You've lost your simple faith and happiness. What's wrong?

Bad training . . . silly, sentimental training that does not check with truth . . . that's what's wrong? It's viciously misleading to tell any child that blood kin always love. It warps his picture of the human scene for all his life.

Love is, of all things, most desired and beautiful. But the mere fact that families share a house and name does not bring love. Families are composed of individuals as well as relatives. They're people, not just brothers, sisters, parents, husbands, wives. And, being people, each one has a private life with separate preferences . . . as well as that important family life he shares with you.

You recognize this fact in strangers whom you pass in those you work with on the welding job or stand in line to get a bit of beef. You know you're both different . . . each one has his rights . . . you do not sit in judgment on him for that fact. Nor do you feel you're tainted with a secret sin because you can't together build a bond of love. Then why not be as sensible with those whose name you share?

It can be done. We're not compelled to deal in ecstasies. We only need to show our kin such kindness, tolerance and tact as we would show the nameless stranger at our door. And nearly every family would be happier if they would merely be as kindly to each other as they are to homeless wanderers they chance to meet.

YOU DO NOT NEED TO LOVE OR UNDERSTAND EACH MEMBER OF YOUR CLAN. YOU ONLY NEED TO SHOW YOUR NEED OF KINDLINESS . . . YOUR SIMPLE THANKS TO ONE WHO HELPS YOU BEAR LIFE'S LONELY ROAD. THEN, WHEN IT'S LEAST EXPECTED, LOVE MAY COME.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, April 10, 1923.

Community Chest goal for approaching campaign was announced as $85,000, with 12 participating agencies.

Edwin G. Slough was speaker at annual meeting of Plymouth chamber of commerce.

Mrs. William S. Wood, 66, died at her home, 82 Vennum avenue.

Judge Hugh L. Nichols, of Batavia, was speaker at meeting of First Presbyterian brotherhood.

Mansfield horseshoe pitchers were victors over Findlay in matches on Stecker courts.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jones of Park avenue west.

Otto Bader moved from 51 Home avenue into his new home at 351 West Sixth street.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was legally organized on this date in 1866. This date also marks the birth in 1870 of Vladimir Ulianov, or Lenin, founder of Russia's red government.

Dave Boone Says:

YOU have to go back to a Dickens novel to find anything as inhuman as the story of conditions at Creedmoor hospital, an institution for the mentally ill, in Queens, N. Y. The other day it was testified that the milk from the institution's dairy herd went to the employes and officials and not to the patients. And now it develops that the board of visitors appointed by the state to check up regularly on the operation of the hospital rarely bothered to go near it.

* * *

Their appointments carried with them the obligation to see that the patients got decent treatment but they never got around to it. And one of them, a physician, admitted he never bothered to look into the death of a 76-year-old inmate whose death from "seven broken ribs and internal injuries" was given as "due to a fall."

* * *

No war against savagery and uncivilized people can look very sincere unless it takes in such conditions right under our noses.

It begins to look like congress may be beginning to decide that the matter of framing a tax bill ain't so unimportant and trivial that it can just be postponed like a rubber of bridge.

* * *

Even Mr. Doughton has stopped yawning over it and indicated it might be an important matter to take up during the present year.

Plans for Currency Stabilization Deemed Vital to Post-War Trade

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNCONTROLLED fluctuation of currency, economic collapse in many small countries, world trade in a slump—these are some of the fears that haunt government leaders and economists peering into the post-war years.

Toward the prevention of these the U. S. moved during the week, offering from its still-undisclosed post-war program a currency stabilization proposal.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and his experts required 13 pages to outline the proposal, which would provide for the establishment of a $5,000,000,000 fund—of which the U. S. would put up $2,000,000,000—to deal in international currencies. Nations participating in the program would fix the rates at which the currencies were bought and sold. There could be no competitive currency depreciation among the nations, because rates would be changed only in case of emergency.

Accounts of the fund would be kept in a new international monetary unit, "unitas," having a $10 gold value but used merely as a bookkeeping device.

The plan would, in the words of the treasury, permit participating governments to act as insurance agents for their exporters and importers and "private enterprise will have all the advantages, without the risk of fluctuating foreign exchange."

Of 37 nations invited to participate in the plan, 10 had responded by the time it was disclosed by the treasury. Of the Axis nations, Morgenthau said no provision for them had been made, but "the door is not closed."

Hefty U. S. contribution—which also would give this nation veto power on legislation—was called "in our selfish interest." Said Morgenthau: "We will be one of the few nations in a position to export after the war."

At Home

Critical Year.

For a while, things were looking up in the rubber situation. On top of the recent relaxing of regulations on tire recapping, Rubber Director William M. Jeffers said he planned to quit his post after July 1 if, by then, the synthetic rubber program is "all set and coming through."

Further, said Jeffers (this in a letter to midwestern governors) if one goal of the program is attained it will be "completely unnecessary" to restrict the use of tires on automobiles.

Motorists who have heard for more than a year that gasolene rationing is due not to a shortage of gasoline (except in the east) but to one of rubber, were elated, too elated, apparently, for the next day Jeffers set them right.

"While my statements have been encouraging," said he, "I have definitely stated that 1943 would be the critical year and that if we do not bridge the gap between the rubber we now have and the date when synthetic rubbers would be brought in in sufficient quantity to take care of at least essential driving, we will find ourselves in serious trouble . . ."

Sighted Monkey, Ate Same.

Anything you see monkeys eat, you can eat. And if you're quick on your feet, you can eat the monkey, too.

That's the general idea of the new Army and Navy cookbooks, issued to men who may drift at sea, land on uninhabited shores or be forced down in jungle or desert. The survival recipes recommend these gastronomic indelicacies not as tasty or pretty but as edible even though raw, and as handy dishes to keep a man alive until he can get back to civilization and the war.

In addition to fish, the Navy's guidebook suggests the flesh of eels, birds, animals, some snakes.

"All animals are safe to eat," the book says. "Monkeys, bats, lizards, land turtles, frogs and even snakes, including poisonous snakes if they have not bitten themselves . . ."

Good Doggie.

The secretary of the treasury of the United States of America formally apologized to all dachshunds and two San Francisco dachshunds in particular.

Six-year-old Johnny Anson and his two dachshunds became so enraged over a war bond advertisement caricaturing a dachshund with Hitler's face, that Johnny wrote Secretary Morgenthau "you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Morgenthau's secretary promptly wrote Johnny under the great seal of the treasury that Mr. and Mrs. Morgenthau have a dachshund, both are fond of the breed and "Will you please tell your dachshunds that there was no intention to insult them or the other members of their breed?"

The Hitler-faced dashshund of the bond poster is working for the treasury's second war loan drive which opens Monday with 13 billion dollars as its goal. Campaign slogan: "They gave their lives—you lend your money."

Quotes

Rep. Melvin J. Maas, Minnesota Republican: "Unless we do something to stop the Japs without further delay we can lose the war—and probably will. Even if there is a stalemate in the Pacific, as seems probable to me, we will thereby lose the war."

Maj. Gen. Harold L. George, chief of the U. S. air transport command: "When the full story of the air transport command can be written the engineering work done in building major arctic bases will make the construction of the Panama Canal look like small peanuts."

Abroad

Yanks Over Paris.

American Flying Fortresses made their debut in England some months before the U. S. entered the war—and they got about the same reception a drug store cowboy might expect in a Texas ranch bunkhouse at roundup time.

The ships were pretty enough, the British agreed, but could they fight? It took a few weeks for the Forts to prove they could; armament was changed, operational difficulties were overcome, and the Fortresses stepped out to become one of World War II's greatest weapons.

One bright day during the week, as the aerial attack of the Allies rolled to unprecedented ferocity, 133 Flying Fortresses swept over Paris for the war's first American attack on the Nazi-held French capital.

Objective was the Renault motor works, snuggling in the Parisian suburbs in the shadow of the Eiffel Tower. In perfect flying weather, the Forts slid over the target, unloaded hundreds of tons of bombs, watched one spawning place for Adolf Hitler's mechanized army go up in billowing brown, yellow, black smoke.

The Renault raid, tremendous as it was, formed only a part of the Allied "prelude to invasion" bombing. Maintaining their round-the-clock schedule, Americans and British struck at Kiel, the German naval base; the Krupp munitions works in Essen, the Axis' Italian supply bases in Naples, Syracusa and Salerno; French transportation lines at Abbeville, submarine pens in Lorient and St. Nazaire.

As in other recent raids, Axis opposition was lighter than a few months ago, reprisal raids were of small consequence.

Biggest Defeat.

When the Russian winter campaign was signed off officially, March 31, it already was bogged down in the mud and melting snow and ice of the 1,600 mile front. But the Russians were pleased; they had, according to the wording of the special communique, "inflicted heavy military defeats on the enemy armies," and at Stalingrad ". . . inflicted on the German Fascist troops the biggest defeat in the history of wars."

The Volga route had been cleared for Red traffic, long stretches of the Don river shores, as well, again were in Russian hands. In addition to 850,000 German dead, the Russians claimed to have immobilized another 350,000 troops, destroyed or captured 5,000 Nazi planes, 9,190 tanks and 20,000 guns.

The Russian position this year contrasted sharply with that of a year ago, when the Reds appeared to have exhausted themselves battering at the outskirts of strong German positions, then were forced to fall back rapidly under the genuine heat of the German push.

In Short

Adopted: An 8-year-old orphan by Film Actress Joan Crawford and her Actor-Husband Philip Terry.

Dedicated: A 4.9 miles stretch of Chicago's still uncompleted $64,000,000 subway system.

Killed: In action in China, Capt. Burrell Barnum of Old Lyme, Conn., who won the Distinguished Flying Cross for taking on 39 Japanese airplanes singlehanded.

Denied: The appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court by Max Stephan, Detroit restaurant owner sentenced to hang for treason in harboring and aiding a German aviator who escaped from a Canadian prison camp.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Formality Lacking Where War Is Real And Red Tape Is Cut to a Minimum.

SOMEWHERE IN TUNISIA—When correspondents first came to the Tunisian front last fall, there were no special facilities for them, and every man was on his own.

Some got around by hitchhiking on army vehicles. Some bought French sedans. They wrote wherever they could; sitting in their cars, or in some bleak country hotel. They got their copy back to the city by many methods, including the one of walking up to anybody about to get on a plane and saying, "Hey Joe, would you mind taking this in for me?"

Things are different now. The Army Public Relations Office has set up an advanced post well back of the lines. They look after a regular aerial courier service back to headquarters and send out our mail to us. They have a few jeeps to dole out to correspondents and for a while they had a house where meals were served and where correspondents could throw their bedrolls on cots when they came back from the lines.

The PRO hopes eventually to acquire tents and tables and cots and a regular kitchen crew, so that it can move right along with the advancing troops, just like a circus. We'll be covering the war in style.

WHEN I was first in Tunisia, I traveled by hanging around some headquarters until I hit somebody who was going my way by truck or jeep, then threw my stuff on and set out.

A little later I was lucky enough to get a jeep. The man responsible for that was Capt. Ed Atkins, of Ford City, Pa., who controlled a certain motor pool. He and Lieut. Max Kuehnert, of Chicago, have done so much for me in the way of little things all through this campaign that it will take me ten years to repay them.

Only two or three of us had jeeps at first, so we always tried to double up. I shared mine for some time with Don Coe of the United Press. Will Lang of Time-Life and I made a couple of trips together. And some of the time I wandered around alone, although that isn't wise any more, for you need one man to watch the rear for strafing planes.

On the jeep we carried everything we had—bedroll, typewriter, musette bag, tent. Also we carried extra cans of gasoline, a camouflage net, and a box of canned rations, in case we got stuck somewhere away from an army kitchen.

We knew where all the gasoline dumps were throughout the hundred miles or so of American front. We'd simply drive up to one, tell the soldier in charge we needed some gas, get out our pliers and tap a couple of five-gallon cans, and pour it in.

He'd say, "Who's this to be charged to?" And we'd tell him any outfit number that popped into our heads, or even some mythical unit such as "The Sahara Task Force." He'd seldom put it down anyway, for obviously it was army gas going into an army vehicle.

I remember once a stalled British truck flagged us down, and the kid driver said he was out of gas. Much to his astonishment we said we'd give him five gallons. And when he asked if we had a form for him to sign and we said hell no, just pour it in, his amazement was complete. These crazy Americans, they make things so simple.

CORRESPONDENTS on the prowl sleep wherever they stop. Usually you can find a bare tile floor in some old farmhouse being used as a headquarters. We've discovered that after a few nights on the floor or on the ground it doesn't seem hard.

I believe I'm about the only correspondent who frequently pitches his pup tent. Some correspondents carry folding camp cots, but I don't because I haven't got one, and secondly it's much warmer sleeping right on the ground.

Our main difficulty has been in keeping warm. I have my bedroll cover and two blankets under me, then three blankets over me, plus mackinaw and sometimes the canvas top to the jeep. You always sleep with your clothes on, taking off only your mackinaw and shoes.

The greatest mistake I made in this campaign was in not bringing a sleeping bag and rubber mattress from home. They're just as light to carry as a bedroll, twice as comfortable and three times as warm. I think about half our line officers did bring sleeping bags. But now that spring is here it isn't so important.

ODDLY enough, you don't get up terribly early at the front. Breakfast at a field headquarters usually runs till 8:30, so you can sleep till around 8. If it's a semi-permanent headquarters, you eat at tables in a tent. If it's a field kitchen, you're served on trays from the back end of a truck, and you eat standing up.

Most officers manage to wash once a day, but I personally go more on the enlisted man's psychology and just skip it. Between Dec. 28 and March 1 I had just one bath. When I finally went into the city and had my first bath in five weeks, it was too much for me. I came down with a seven-day cold.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

By Oren Arnold

CHAPTER IX

"Who knows when you might have to kill a rattlesnake?"

That significant question, voiced by Bill St. Clair, stuck with Rosemary while he and Uncle Pete finished their deal. No more was said about the shooting or the phrase. But Rosemary knew that not all rattlesnakes crawl on the ground. She felt vague alarm, a lurking but more ominous sense of danger, just because Bill St. Clair had reacted this way. He had always been such a polished gentleman! Now, like any other two-fisted man who accomplished things, he had tacitly proclaimed reliance on righteous force.

She said nothing when Bill also bought belts and holsters, and buckled one loaded gun around her own waist. It made her feel very self-conscious at first.

"I've never worn such a thing," she murmured, in sheer amusement.

"Nor I," said Bill. And that's all he did say, as he strapped on his own gun.

They went then into the Lightning City Hotel for the first time. When they got through the door, both Bill and Rosemary were amazed.

Here, at least, was no "ghost" building. Plainly the other structures of this rock town had been vacated, looted, left for the vandalism of wanderers and time. But Uncle Pete's hotel was completely furnished with chairs, cuspidors, tables, desks, beds, linens, towels, chandeliers and pride!

He had taken Bill's "reservations" literally. He escorted Bill and Rosemary to the 50-year-old lobby desk now, and rather formally requested that they register on a huge leather-bound book. Top of each page here proclaimed that the Lightning City was the town's de luxe hostelry, and Rosemary's hurried glance told her that the last previous guest had registered here in 1929. Later she learned that even he was a curiosity seeker, a man who came to take pictures of the ghost town and was caught here in a rain.

Uncle Pete, miraculously, had a clean room for Rosemary, on the third floor. Bill's room, it developed, was up just one flight, over the old hotel vault.

"It's incredible!" Bill declared, guarded tone. "All this!"

"Yes mum." Uncle Pete misunderstood. "I told you so. Best hotel in the county. Only one here with the manager right on the job!"

The old fellow's mind, just a little bit warped, was no less incredible than his property, but it was all reasonable enough when the facts were known. Bill prowled over the entire building, grunting frequently in surprise, looking out windows, touching relics here and there. Once he looked out and said, "I see why they call it purple canyon."

Rosemary had already discerned that. The haze of afternoon toned down the vermillion in the cliffs. Here was a rich, rare beauty.

"What about food?" Bill suddenly asked. "Meals? Uncle Pete, could you—?" He hesitated, and Rosemary wondered if Bill was out of his own mind. Could the man actually be planning to stay here? Keep her here, too?

Uncle Pete looked confused. Together then they examined the kitchen and dining room. There was evidence of his own cooking, but search revealed far too little in the way of groceries and supplies. Again Bill poked here and there, grunting and exclaiming in low tone. Rosemary knew these symptoms of thinking.

All at once he turned to her and she recognized his crisp decisive tone. He had planned a course of action, a campaign. It was exactly as she had seen him do back in the office at Washington.

"We'll lease the hotel from Uncle Pete," said he. "You will take the upstairs rooms he has tidied up for you, Mrs. Boyle, and my own room on the lower floor—"

"Oh!"

He looked straight at her, then: "Shall I keep on calling you Miss Lee? Rosemary Lee?"

There was a silence. She opened her mouth to speak, but no sound came. Then he answered for her. "Very well, it's Miss Lee then. In either event, this arrangement entails a chaperone. Uncle Pete is age 72, Rosemary. And—I have just purchased you a gun."

"Oh!"

He smiled his old fond, teasing smile. "Oh-oh-oh!"

"I'm sorry! I—surely, Mr. St. Clair. If you want us to stay here."

"Why not? This ghost town is only three miles from the site of the air field. That's eight miles closer than Option, and you weren't well received there. At least Lightning has shown us hospitality."

"But what can we do?" she almost cried, it. "I told you we were blocked. That—man—bought up all the land and sold it for a terrific profit. And even though the government paid his price, he came right back here and bought up all the available lumber. Mr. St. Clair, there isn't a stick of lumber to be had! Not for months!"

"Hmmm. What shall we do, then? Go hang over the banister and have a good cry?"

It was the first touch of sarcasm she had ever heard from him. It shocked her, and shamed her as well. She realized, all at once, that she had been acting rather like a selfish child in all this; putting her relatively unimportant personal worries ahead of the grand job here. The job of winning a war.

"We'll turn every stone," she snapped. "We'll plan something."

"That's the ticket. Now—we take the rooms. Second thing, we drive back to Option and buy provisions, and start Uncle Pete's horse and mules back here to their home. Maybe we can hire a driver. Third, we get office equipment and supplies, Rosemary. We'll commandeer this hotel lobby and parlor, see? Pay a fair rental to Uncle Pete. Plenty of tables, chairs, all that. Drinking water. Place to live. We'll need a crew of workers soon. We'll slave night and day and live up to the schedule if it kills us. That means some of those new airport buildings have to be up and ready for occupancy in just four weeks!"

"Oh Bill!" she forgot, calling him that.

But four weeks would require a miracle and she knew it. The air field site, down below Purple Canyon the flat plain, was utterly barren. Not even a road led to it now.

"And one other thing before we start back to Option," Bill said, and he spoke with a firmness and force she had never seen in him before. "About that Boyle—let's keep him in the dark, for a while. You didn't introduce him to me by name. Okay, keep up that act, Rosemary. Let's all pretend I think he's somebody else. Don't let him know that I know who he is!"

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

The growing importance of chemistry has made that subject one of constant interest to young minds. The two books on chemistry which have been added to the informational volumes in the children's section of the Mansfield Public Library not only inform but give enjoyment to young readers. These books will be placed on the shelves Saturday.

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH CHEMISTRY, by Alfred Morgan — As the title indicates this book explains the chemistry of common things. There are simple experiments by way of illustration and all the known chemical elements are described. Recent developments in plastics and synthetic fibers are discussed making this a helpful and informative book.

CHARLES HAMPTON, RESEARCH CHEMIST, by Arthur and Stephen Kenney — By means of the story of Charlie Hampton these authors have shown the background of many of our new chemical discoveries. Charlie worked for the United Acids and Alkalies Chemical company experimenting with a series of formulas of resins before Pearl Harbor. Then their efforts were directed to the production of a bullet-proof plastic. The authors have indicated that the discoveries are necessarily fictitious but the methods are as true as it was possible to make them.

rate the enemy will soon have no infantry left to hold his position.

"I told you that if each one of us did our duty and pulled his full weight then nothing could stop us. And nothing has stopped us. You have given our families at home and in fact the whole world good news—plenty of it every day.

"I want now to express to you, my soldiers, whatever may be your rank or employment, my grateful thanks for the way in which you responded to my calls on you and my admiration for your wonderful fighting qualities.

"I doubt if our empire has ever possessed such a magnificent fighting machine as the Eighth army. You have made its name a household word all over the world.

"I thank each one of you for what you have done. I am very proud of my Eighth army. On your behalf, I have sent a message of appreciation to the western desert air force. The brilliant work of its squadrons and the devotion to duty of all pilots made our victories possible in such a short time.

"We are all one entity—the Eighth army and the western desert air force—together constituting one magnificent fighting machine.

"And now let us get on with our third task. Let us make the enemy face up to and endure a first-class Dunkirk on the beaches of Tunis.

"Our triumphant cry now is: 'forward to Tunis!' Drive the enemy into the sea!"

The message was signed: "B. L. Montgomery, general, 8th army."

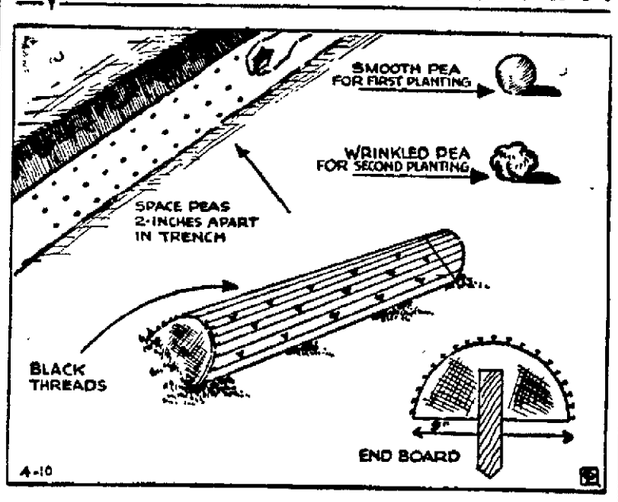
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Early Peas for Victory Gardens.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Peas are a hardy, cool-weather vegetable and the seeds should be planted early in the Victory garden. Peas like to keep their roots cool therefore later plantings should be made deeper than is necessary for the first planting in order to protect roots from the increasing heat.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, plant peas two inches apart in the trench. In this way the peas are planted evenly and at a distance which permits the foliage of one row to shade the roots of another row, thus keeping the roots moist and cool.

There are two types of peas, as illutrated. The smooth type of seed should be used for early plantings since they are a hardier variety than the wrinkled type illustrated, and will not be injured by late, unexpected frosts.

To protect early peas from birds and rabbits the English method of using pea guards is advocated. This guard, see illustration, is easy to make. Place a row of carpet tacks around the outside edge of a semi-circular piece of wood. Attach this piece of wood to a sharpened stake and place one at each end of a row of peas. Then run heavy black threads back and forth from tack head to tack head. Birds and rabbits brushing against the taut threads are frightened away.

Culp Jewelers Invite Customers To Inspect Remodeled Store

Repair 3000 Watches Skillfully In Past Year

Earl J. and H. Eugene Culp, jewelers, located at 307-8 Richland Trust building, are celebrating the anniversary of their first successful year in business at this address.

During this time they have established a reputation in the minds of Mansfielder- for reliable service in the field of watch repair, the designing and fashioning of personalized jewels as well as the sale of dependable watches and fine diamonds.

The photo, left, shows Earl Culp, manufacturing jeweler, and Eugene Culp, watchmaker, proprietors of Culp Jewelry, located at 307-8 Richland Trust building. A section of the attractive showroom is shown above.

Earl J. Culp brings to the partnership 26 years of experience as skilled manufacturing jeweler and repairman, having learned his trade with the famed Bancroft Brothers in Columbus.

He is particularly adept at creating unusual pieces in diamonds, making up individualized dinner and cocktail rings, for instance, of rare and outstanding beauty. His service is unique in that he either creates a design for the approval of a customer or submits one suggested by the buyer's own whim.

If a jewel has some sentimental value but is of outmoded style, Mr. Culp will modernize it skillfully. It is also possible to have diamonds set in the usual manner while you wait.

H. Eugene Culp, a brother, contributes to the partnership, his artistry as watchmaker and repairman of note. A graduate of Bradley Polytechnic Institute, world's finest watchmaking school he is the only craftsman in Mansfield to claim this distinction. Culp's workmanship even includes the manufacturing of intricate parts of watches. During the past year he has repaired more than 3,000 timepieces with the painstaking care that is making an enviable reputation for Culp Jewelers for watch repair.

The combined skill of the Culp brothers makes their organization unique in that they are independent of any outside service of mountings and all repair work at a time when such service is usually delayed.

In addition to these services, Culp Brothers offer a complete stock of fine jewelry which includes an unusual supply of good watches and a beautiful showing of fine diamonds, identification bracelets and other items appropriate for Easter gifts.

They invite you to call to see these things, as well as their beautifully remodeled store.

OPS SUGGESTS WAYS TO SAVE ELECTRICITY

Westinghouse Hot Water Heater Is Favored as Economy Device.

There is no room for waste in wartime America. Rich though this nation is in natural resources, it is still the patriotic duty of each one of us to take care of the things we have, that essential raw materials may be released for war necessities.

This does not mean that we must refrain from buying things we actually need to protect and increase the health and strength of our families. Quite the reverse . . . for a healthy American is a strong American. But it does mean that we must avoid waste, we must conserve our possessions, our energies, our time.

Electric energy is one of the chief materials of war. It is the energy that operates machines by which war necessities are made. Therefore, now is the time for all of us to rally round and help save all the electricity we can, that there may be plenty, both for the extra demands of industry and for home consumption.

Again . . . this does not mean that we should not use the electricity we need, that we should return to the days of scrubbing clothes by hand, that we should abandon the health-protecting service of electric refrigeration, or that we should relegate our labor saving electric appliances to the attic. Not at all. But it does mean that we should use our appliances wisely and efficiently, that we should not waste electricity.

There are a few simple things that every one of us can do to conserve electricity. Turn our radios off when no one is actually listening to them. Open our refrigerator doors as seldom as possible. If we cook with an electric range, use the thrift cooker frequently. These things seem small, and they are. But if we do all of them, they may well conserve enough electricity to build a four-motor bomber.

One method of economy lies in the use of a Westinghouse automatic electric hot water heater. Westinghouse efficiency plus the special low rates for electric water heating will give you the constant hot water service you want for only a few pennies a day. Thousands of Westinghouse users, in fact, report that they pay less for heating water electrically than they did with previous methods.

Westinghouse Water Heaters turn current off when water is hot enough. You never have to worry about water getting too hot. Install the heater anywhere. The outside is always cool. There are no flames or fumes. Children's curious fingers can come to no harm, do no mischief.

Westinghouse Electric Heaters are automatic. They give you all the water you want any minute of the day or night. You never have to do a thing. No stairs to climb. No fires to light. Nothing to turn on or off. Just install it and forget it.

And you'll be surprised when you see how cheaply you can enjoy carefree Westinghouse Electric Water Heating at the special low price of electricity in this locality. If you will phone Ohio Public Service, they will send a trained representative to your home to survey your hot water needs and suggest the type of heater which will give you the most efficient service.

Officers for the coming year were elected at the recent meeting of the Findley Anderson Bible class at the home of Mrs. W Frank Wilson. Members elected Mrs. W. Frank Wilson as the new president.

Vice president for the coming year will be Mrs. Eva Miller, secretary, Mrs. J. W. Waddell and treasurer, Miss Mary Painter.

After the business session, the program chairman, Mrs. J. Campbell-White took charge of a playlet, which was presented by Mrs. Eva Rusk and Mrs. Russell Anderson.

Refreshments were served buffet style at the close of the evening.

Mrs. Harry Packham will entertain at the May 5 meeting with Mrs. O. T. Garver and Miss Anna Rauch assisting.

Get Rid of Sagging Muscles

By MME. QUI VIVE

Beautifying is an age-old art. It isn't vanity, but self respect that inspires a woman to put up the best possible appearance. To permit oneself to go to seed is stupid and silly, fortunately for the comfort of the public eye, few women do it. Every decade women wrinkle less early, proving that cosmetics and care are useful weapons for keeping Old Man Time at a distance.

In middle life the tissues of the face are inclined to soften with the result that fine lines appear. The flesh on the body remains firm, because the muscles are exercised by physical activity. The fibers of the face are many, and they are delicate and small. An effort should be made in the thirties to keep the musculature sound and firm. This can be done by applying a heavy cream, giving the flesh a brisk tapping and patting once or twice a day. Ice rubs are wrinkle preventives because they excite the blood streams, which carry nourishment to the flesh.

Sagging tissues should be caught young. Once started on the road of dissolution they go from bad to worse, and when wrinkles are deep and established there is no remedy other than plastic surgery, which is expensive.

Spreading on a cream every night will keep the skin from getting rough but it is beyond the bounds of reason to expect that it will erase wrinkles or tone tissue. Massage is necessary for muscle stimulation. We expect too much of cosmetics. They aren't cure-alls; they cannot work magic. They fulfill a certain mission and that's all.

The old time stroking and rotating method is out. The impulse is to move the cream laden fingers in circles. That practice pushes the flesh up under the eyes, helps to dig in deeper the tiny lines that surround them.

Slapping and tapping leave the flesh in its normal place. Apply cream lavishly. Start patting at the line of the collar bones. Work from chin up to ear lobes. Slap up from the jaw line, over the cheeks and temples. Start tapping in the center of the forehead, proceed toward the hairline at the sides.

Do this at bed time. Cream left on for the night will be lapped up by the flesh, will do more good than if it were wiped away after a few hours.

Before a massage treatment there should be a rousing face washing, so the flesh will be clean and glowing.

In the morning, dash on cold water to bring coloring and a fresh appearance. Then on with the synthetic blush, the powder, the lip tint.

For good clear fats for cooking, cut up gristle and fat from roasts, and put into saucepan with bones. Rinse roasting pan out with hot water and add water to scraps, enough to cover. Simmer 1 to 2 hours, strain, and let stand until fat hardens on top. Use liquid in soups and fat for browing or in sauces. Be sure to turn in to your butcher fats you cannot use. Old fats will make munitions and leave new lard for consumer use.

Mrs. L. H. Edwards, Mrs. Mary Seymour Hostesses at Meet

The Esther class of the Mayflower Congregational church held its regular meeting Friday night with Mrs. L. H. Edwards and Mrs. Mary Seymour as hostesses at the home of Mrs. Edwards, 216 Rae avenue.

Mrs. Imo Davis, president, led the devotional period and the business session. Plans were made to hold a rummage sale the first week in May.

Winners of prizes in contests were Mrs. Albert Adams and Mrs. Cleo Hainer. The evening was spent socially. At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Mrs. C. A. Cole will entertain at the May 12 meeting at her home, 394 West Fifth street. Mrs. Estella Husung will serve as associate hostess.

Elizabeth Bay Is Guest Speaker At Mothers' Club

The April meeting of the Woodville Mothers' club was held at the school recently with 48 members and two guests present. Mrs. Frank Schultter, president, conducted the business meeting.

Red Cross sewing was returned by members The past presidents were appointed, as a committee to select the new officers to be elected at the next meeting.

Gust speaker at the meeting was Miss Elizabth Bay, who gave an interesting talk on "Household Supplies and Substitutes." The third and fourth grades, gave morning devotions for the mothers

Mrs. C. W. Frickman gave a reading in keeping with the Easter season. Mrs. Robert Miller and her committee served refreshments.

Mr. McCullough's room won the room prize.

A group of mothers volunteered to gather at the school Wednesday afternoon to make costumes for the rhythm band.

The next meeting of the club will be held May 5.

Barnyard Goes to the Head

REMINDER OF MEAT RATIONING is given by war-time chapeau worn by Film Actress Carole Landis. Reputedly inspired by the camouflage Miss Landis saw on her recent tour of army camps in North Africa, the creation uses green raffia for the simulated grass brim. White, red-roofed barn of felt makes up the crown while barnyard animals, such as pigs, cows and horses, are used for trimming.

THEATERS

Opens at Ohio.

An array of Paramount stars you can think of, and more than that, is the musical comedy, "Star Spangled Rythm," which opens today at the Ohio. And by "every Paramount star you can think of" we mean such favorites as Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Fred MacMurray, Franchot Tone, Ray Milland, Victor Moore, Dorothy Lamour, Paulette Goddard, Vera Zorina, Mary Martin, Dick Powell, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Veronika Lake, Alan Ladd, Rochester and many others. The story tells of the dilemma of the Paramount studio gateman, Victor Moore, who has been pretending to his sailor son, Eddie, that he runs the studio. When Eddie shows up on shore leave, the old man is on the spot.

"Postmark-U. S. A."

"Postmark-U. S. A." film story of a letter from home received by a young American aviator "somewhere out there," starts at the Ohio today. The film is the eighth produced as a part of the program of the National Association of Manufacturers Mansfield industries are cooperating to make the picture a success here. According to William P. Witherow, chairman of the association, the production is so realistically performed that spectators are not aware until hours afterwards what a tremendous message it carries and what confidence it builds in the righteousness of the American way.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

REWARDS OF SOUNDNESS

BIDDING OR playing the sound way will sometimes bring you extra rewards. There seems to be a divinity that works in behalf of such a player and gives him the very best he could hope for, perhaps something unexpectedly desirable. This is the case far more frequently than those in which unsoundness pays greater dividends than correct methods, though the latter undoubtedly provoke more comment.

Seeing West lead the diamond 10 caused South to count East for all three of the higher honors in the suit. Such being the case, he must keep West from ever regaining the lead, if possible, so that he couldn't lead through diamonds again. A later lead of them from West would mean that he must lose three tricks in the suit, making his contract impossible.

Hoping East had nothing else in diamonds except the three missing honors, which was quite probable, he played low from dummy, and sure enough that proved to be the case, as East had to win the trick with the J trying to get West in again, East led the club 2. South, of course, went right in with the A.

His next job was to make sure West did not get the lead with the trump Q. So he gave up the idea of a spade finesse and instead played his two tops, knowing he had to drop the Q now to make his contract. Sure enough, the Q fell and he then was safe, as after dropping the trump 10 with the J, four consecutive hearts enabled him to discard two clubs from dummy and ruff his own last one. Now he could afford to give East two more diamonds, which he did as he recorded his nice game due to concentrating on the crux of the hand

Your Week-End Lesson.

Why is it usually bad bridge if the maker of an original game guarantee suit bid of two jumps on his second turn instead of making a minimum rebid of either the same or another suit? Can you recall an actual example in which such a bid cost his side points? If not, can you construct a hand which clearly illustrates the principle involved?

Garden Club Has Second Meeting Of the Season

The second meeting of the season for the Johnny Appleseed Garden club was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. W. Loughridge, with 15 members and one honorary member, Mrs. Henry Macy, present.

Speaker at the meeting was Mrs. Tom Ford, who talked on "Best Varieties of Seeds." She told of her own experiences with vegetable gardening, and with what seeds she secured the best results. Mrs. Ford also read letters from the War Savings and Victory bond committee enlisting the club's support.

Mrs. Oliver Henkel gave a report on the April Garden Center meeting.

Mrs. Allen Bond will entertain the club at its April 23 meeting.

Mrs. Agnes Metz Elected Head of Park Auxiliary

Mrs. Agnes Metz was elected president at the meeting of the Liberty Park auxiliary, when 22 members met at the park pavilion for its annual election of officers.

Mrs. Grace Pocock was named as vice president, Mrs. Mildred Keiser, secretary, Mrs. Pauline Heichel re-elected treasurer and Mrs. Pauline Conrad, re-elected reporter.

After a short business session, cards were played. High scores and prizes were won by Mrs. Katherine Keiser, in pinochle, Mrs. Mary Watson in bridge and Mrs. Pocock in euchre.

Mrs. Metz will have charge of the May 5 meeting, when other newly elected officers will serve as hostesses.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, April 11.

A fairly active and interesting day, in which the affairs of the church, clergy, community, and public welfare are under promise of success and gratifying achievements.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a moderately active and successful year, with a solidity and endurance to various interests that may bring satisfaction and public recognition. This gratification should not be jeopardized by petty bickerings or discords, or personal emotions.

A child born on this day may be talented, resourceful and persevering although emotional and fond of having its own way.

For Monday, April 12.

Monday's astrological forecast is for an eventful and lively day, in which the social, domestic or sentimental factors are to the fore although business will not be entirely neglected. The financial outlook is good, and may be a force for enhancing the social or romantic status.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly prosperous and happy year in which the emphasis may be placed on the social, domestic or romantic relations. In new ventures and investments or other financial transactions the outlook is favorable, but keep business affairs separate from personal, as elders and superiors are not any too complacent about propositions.

MRS. ROY SEATON HAS MARY-MARTHA MEETING

Miss Ruby Doolittle Named President at Bible Club Meeting; Group Plans Program for Blind to Be Given April 22.

MRS. ROY SEATON entertained 14 members of the Mary Martha Bible club when it met at her home, 393 West Third street, for election of officers. Miss Ruby Doolittle was named president.

Others who will serve in official capacity are Mrs. Seaton, vice president; Mrs. J. D. Wilcox, secretary; Mrs. A. A. Laubscher, treasurer; Mrs. H. F. Alexander, assistant secretary, and Mrs. Samuel Craig, telephone hostess.

The president appointed her program committee for the coming year. That committee is comprised of Mrs. S. S. Little, Mrs. H. F. Alexander and Mrs. J. Leo Hartman.

Devotions at the meeting were led by Mrs. D. W. Cummins. Mrs. K. R. Smith had charge of the business meeting. Plans were made to continue another year with the study of Hebrews.

Mary-Martha members voted to give $3 to the China War Relief Fund. Ten members of the club plan to attend the dinner to be held at the First Methodist church April 14, by the Mansfield Federation of Bible clubs.

Study of the 13th chapter of Romans was in charge of Mrs. A. F. Ramsey. Mrs. Ramsey and Mrs. C. G. Critchfield comprised the nominating committee for the coming year.

A program for the blind people, who meet at the Salvation Army April 22, will be given by the club. That program will be in charge of Mrs. Charles Ray and Mrs. Critchfield.

Esther Bible Club Holds Election at Regular Meeting

The Esther Bible class met at the home of Mrs. Esther Etzwiler, 96 Park avenue east, Thursday afternoon with seven members and four guests, Mrs. Fred A. Griebling, Mrs. James Purdy, Mrs. S. Hagerman and Mrs. John Miller, advisor of the club, present.

Mrs. D. E. Vnasdale was named as the club's next president, when the group held an election of officers. Others who were elected are Mrs. Charles Shupple, vice president; Mrs. W. C. Cates, secretary; Mrs. J. M. Etzwiler, assistant secretary, and Mrs. C. I. Loos, treasurer and reporter.

Mrs. Vnasdale presided at the business session, and conducted the devotional period. A lesson hour was devoted to the study of Luke in the fifth chapter, by Mrs. Charles Shupple and Mrs. G. H. Cruitt.

The next meeting will be held April 22 at the home of Mrs. Etzwiler, 96 Park avenue east.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I tensed to uneasy attention at the operator's message.

"Are you sure you have the name right?" I asked. "Did you say Dr. Meredith?"

"That is right," she said.

"Put him on the wire, please," I said, and the next instant Hal Meredith's voice came over the wire.

"Madge?" he said eagerly. "This is Hal. Tell me, please, is Katharine with you?"

I was silent for almost a second. What ill wind had brought him here now, when Katharine's emotional turmoil over Jack had almost exhausted her?

Katharine had not spoken of Meredith for months, and I had snelved my long-held theory that Hal, her first sweetheart, by his long, unselfish devotion in contrast with Jack's neglect had won the love her husband apparently had thrown away.

Puzzled About Katharine.

But with the explanation afforded by the treachery of Ruth Hayes and with knowledge of Jack's peril, Katharine apparently had forgotten that there ever had been another man in her life. How would Hal Meredith's return now affect her? Would she want to see him, or would she want me to send him away?

"Are you still there, Madge?" Hal asked, hurt wonder in his voice. 'Didn't you hear me, or are you wondering how to answer me? But first let me tell you that I know Katharine is staying with you, even if not there right now. I have been out to the farm, thinking to find her there, and Lillian told me she was here with you."

"Yes, she is here," I said, "but I don't know whether she ought to see you. She is asleep now, after a very trying day."

"Then I won't disturb her," he said, with chivalrous tenderness. "But—is she in the same room with you?"

"No, I am in the living room of the suite, and she is asleep in the bedroom."

"Then may I come up to see you a few minutes?" he pleaded. "I simply must talk to you, for you are nearer to Katharine than anyone else, and something has come up—something strange—which both she and you must know."

Something in his voice alarmed me, as if something sinister had come to his knowledge which threatened Katharine, and I answered him quickly.

"Will you come up in ten minutes exactly?" I asked "I will be waiting for you."

"I will be there," he said, with relief in his voice, "and thank you."

Sorely as she needed sleep, I felt that I must waken Katharine, tell her that Hal was downstairs, and let her decide what she wished to do.

Katharine's Dream.

In the bedroom I found her tossing restlessly, and as I bent over her she threw out a hand and said tensely: "No, Hal, I can't. I—I—sometimes wish I could, but I can't."

She was dreaming of him! I drew back in puzzled consternation. Had I been wrong, after all? Was her recent apparent devotion to Jack rooted only in duty and remorse instead of love? Or did she truly love her husband and was this dream of Hal only the subconscious utterance of pity?

Which ever it was, I could not delay her wakening. I put my fingers on her wrist, and spoke softly when she opened her eyes and stared somewhat wildly up at me.

"I am sorry to waken you, dear girl," I said, "but it is necessary."

"I am glad you did," she said. "I was having a troublesome dream."

"What has happened?" she asked, now fully wakened. "I know you wouldn't have wakened me but for something important."

"I have a message for you," I said.

Her face was suddenly radiant. "From Jack?" she asked.

This probably can be considered a normal condition, but I am confused again.

Chairman McNutt of the Manpower commission says golf is a fine thing for war workers, and they should NOT consider themselves unpatriotic by seeking relaxation and keeping themselves in shape by playing their favorite game.

The Office of Civilian Supply ranks golf and fishing close to the bottom of the list in necessary entertainment in wartime.

An there have been threats the Office of Price Administration will clamp down on B and C card holders whose cars are found in the vicinity of a golf course or fishing hole. No pleasure driving.

* * *

The OCS puts professional baseball and theaters clear up at the top of necessary entertainment, but I do not profess to have any idea what the OPA thinks of B and C cards parked near the ball lot or the theaters.

I don't suppose either office would be interested in my opinion that golf and fishing are more important for morale and health than sitting three hours in a baseball grandstand or watching a double feature movie.

Here in Mansfield you are apt to find more cars on the street at two o'clock on Sunday morning than at any time of the day during the week. No pleasure driving?

I expect to do my share of golfing, but it isn't such a long walk from the bus to Coolridge. I'm glad I don't go fishing.

* * *

Now they tell me that somebody or other in Washington has said that B and C cards at golf courses would not be disturbed if their owners actually came out to play golf, but for clubhouse loafers it would be another story.

This of course would break up the bridge and other games that spring up at golf clubs at the drop of a bicycle card.

Sorry, I have no defense prepared for the continuation of these games.

A year ago we discovered that all springtime worries got us no place. The golfers started out hesitantly, the softballers held back, the baseballers tossed in the towel.

They were good legitimate worries too, over lack of manpower and equipment. But the golfers found things much as usual, although a little more costly, the softballers after a late start found themselves playing one of their most interesting seasons, and the baseballers, starting in mid-summer, got along after a fashion.

* * *

The same worries exist this spring in far greater measure, plus the transportation worry. But until the bureau bigwigs say "Stop," I'd say go ahead and start early. You may not be able to finish the season, but you'll have the satisfaction of getting as much out of it as possible.

ANDREWS HURLS

PLAINFIELD, N. J.—(AP)—Nate ndrews, who came to the Boston raves from the Cincinnati Reds uring the winter in the deal for ddie Miller, will be on the mound r the Tribe today against the ewark Bears of the International ague. Jim Tobin also is expected do some hurlings.

Indians, Reds Open Series

Keltner Leads Tribe In Spring Clouting.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians meet their most powerful training season foes today, the Cincinnati Reds, but they'll be doing so with a little more confidence in their hitting power than they would have done a few days ago.

Manager Lou Boudreau has picked Chubby Dean, Allie Reynolds and Ray Poat to hurl in the series opener with the Redlegs, hit less heavily by the war than any other team in either league.

With Jeff Heath a holdout and such lusty hitters as Weatherly and Fleming no longer on Cleveland's roster, Tribal hitting power has been an enigma. That is, it was an unknown quantity until yesterday when Boudreau took stock of his team's training camp batting averages and discovered he had five .300 hitters.

* * *

Ken Keltner is leading with .368, representing seven hits in 19 times at bat. Hard on his heels is Boudreau himself with .360. Others in the .300 class are Otto Denning, Gene Desautels and Roy Cullenbine. Denning and Hank Edwards, the rookie outfielder, share runs batted in honors with eight apiece. Edwards is batting .290 with two home runs and a triple after a slow start.

The major disappointment thus far has been Buddy Rosar's failure to show the punch expected of him. His two hits in 19 times at bat have given him an average of .105 for a last place tie with Eddie Turchin.

The war was noticed before yesterday in the Red camp, but a couple of incidents made it strike closer to home. As the Rhinelanders broke camp at their Bloomington base, the heavy trunks and equipment were sent to Cincinnati and the squadmen carried uniforms in cloth bags for their junket with the Indians. In pre-war days, breaking camp meant private Pullman, dining and baggage cars.

Another prospective draftee showed up in the person of Mike McCormick, regular center fielder, as he received orders to report for a preliminary physical April 19. Mike, an expectant father, is now classed in 3-A.

* * *

Manager Bill McKechnie indicated he would concentrate on the "varsity" hurlers in the Cleveland series in an effort to whip them into tip-top shape by season inaugural time, April 21. Bucky Walters still is bothered by the sprained ankle sustained during the second training day, and may not be in shape by the start of the season.

Willie Barely Beats Bartolo

Close Decision Copped By Feather Champion.

BOSTON—(INS)— Featherweight champion Willie Pep was en route to his home in Hartford, Conn., today with a victory over Sal Bartolo, of East Boston, by a split decision in a 10-round battle before a record crowd of 15,949 fans at the Boston Garden.

* * *

Pep was given five rounds, Bartolo four and one round was a draw. Referee Johnny Martin and Judge Jimmy McCarron were for the Hartford lad while Judge Jack Watson held out for the Noddle Islander.

* * *

The Pep-Bartolo gross gate was $39,030 and the net $34,407.

No title was at stake. Both boys were over the featherweight class limit—126 pounds.

Recognized as the world's featherweight champion by the New York Boxing commission, Pep stormed his opponent in the first round which he won easily. He also captured the second, fourth, and eighth goes, trailing the viciously fighting Bartolo.

Bartolo's eye was cut in the second with a terrific right hook but the Boston boy came back in the next session with a doublehanded body attack that had the New York champion on the ropes. Ring acumen, however, saved Pep and he managed to keep his opponent away with long right jabs until he regained his strength.

* * *

Despite the ferocity of the bout, however, no championship was at stake since both of the contestants were above the 126-pound limit set for featherweights.

Purdue Gridders Whistle In Dark

LAFAYETTE, Ind. — (INS) — There was an air of whistling in the dark on the Purdue campus today as far as football is concerned.

The Boilermakers ended seven weeks of spring practice with an exhibition game for the 125 coaches attending the annual Purdue football clinic.

Eighty-one players took part in the spring training, but Coach Elmer Burnham was realistic. He said most of them probably would not be playing football next fall and would be in the armed services.

Goalie Stars In Ice Series

Play of Johnny Mowers, goalie of the Detroit Red Wings, was the standout performance of the victorious Detroit icers, who won the Stanley Cup, hockey's most-prized trophy, in the playoffs with the Boston Bruins. Mowers is shown here stopping a shot at the goal by Bill Cowley, scoring star of the Bruins.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The other day, Al Del Greco, the Hackensack, N. J., sports scribe, came up with the suggestion that golf clubs suffering from the shortage of professionals might do worse than to hire some of the better feminine golfers to take their places . . . There's no kidding about that shortage, either, though eventually the supply of golf courses may run short, too.

WELL, WHY NOT?

About a half dozen top-flight women golfers have turned pro —Helen Hicks, Patty Berg and Betty Hicks Newell for example —and Joe Dey, the U. S. Golf association secretary, figures that any gal who can qualify for the women's championship is a good enough golfer for the job . . . "They're really good," he says. "And women seem to take more lessons and show the effects of instruction more than the men."

Sunday's contest will be played at Evansville and Muncie fans of the Pirates are transporting the players there in private automobiles.

Galento Returns To Ring

Two-Ton Tony Says He's Giving Up Beer.

By JACK CUDDY

ORANGE, N. J. —(U.P.)— Quite off his usul beer barrel polka beam, Tony Galento stood at the head of a long table in his Orange cocktail lounge last night and announced that he finally was launching his come-back. Its features were:

A new manager, Willie Gilzenberg, who piloted Red Cochrane—now of the navy—to the current world welterweight championship.

A campaign aimed at fighting Freddie Mills, outstanding British heavyweight, in London on July 18 and Champion Joe Louis before or when peace comes.

A program to rim the beer barrel that walks like a man to a sylph-like 225 pounds.

As fat Tony made his historic announcement, he shunted aside with a muscular elbow a waiter bearing down upon him with a cold-sweated bottle of beer. The orchestra in the rear of the handsomely appointed lounge played "Melancholy Baby" and Galento looked longingly at the scorned suds and said, "Yes, boys—I've got a new manager now." He was addressing a table-full of newspapermen. "I know that all managers are thieves," he continued, "but I've picked the most honest manager I could find. His name is Willie Gilzenberg. And he's a little guy—a guy I can lick the daylights out of if he does me wrong."

The rotund tavern proprietor in the fancy gray suit and knit brown tie then said: "Seriously, boys, I've picked Gilzenberg as my manager because I know he's a hustler whose savvy maneuvered Cochrane to the welterweight championship."

* * *

Gilzenberg, a smallish chap with a mop of black hair, stood up and said, "Thanks Tony! Anybody who could steal from you would be a genius, because you don't even leave the hides on the buffaloes of the nickles you squeeze. But I'll manage you, as you asked me to do, if you cut out the beer and pare down to 225 pounds."

Galento interrupted with, "I fight best at two hunnert an' thirty five."

Gilzenberg said, "You'll fight better at two hunnert an' twenty five."

Gilzenberg then explained that Galento would be streamlined from his present 245 to 225 and five weeks hence—probably against some mediocre heavyweight. Two-ton Tony will tackle two more mediocre opponents and then tangle with the best the current heavy ranks can offer ,preferably Jimmy Bivins, Tami Mauriello, Lem Franklin, Lee Savold or Pat Valentino.

"I almost knocked Louis out the first time I fought him," Galento contended. "The next time, I'll put him away. How about a drink, boys?"

Keeneland Races Moved to Downs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — (INS) — A refugee program from the Keeneland track opens Kentucky's thoroughbred racing season today at Churchill Downs.

Keeneland transplanted its 10-day spring card because its track, situated eight miles from Lexington, Ky., is accessible only by automobile. Fans are able to reach Churchill Downs by street car.

* * *

The $2,500 added Phoenix handicap for three-year-olds and up was featured today, its entrees including Noonday Sun, derby eligible from the Greentree stables.

EAST TECH ENTERS WESLEYAN RELAYS

DELAWARE —(U.P.)— Cleveland East Tech, defending champion of the Class A crown in the Ohio Wesleyan relays, and Springfield high school, 1941 champion, were the first entrants to file with Athletic Director George Gauthier for the 1943 meet, it was announced today.

The 12th annual running of the relays will be held April 24 at Selby Field

HOLIDAY CAPTURES MICHIGAN CROWN

DETROIT —(INS)— Harry Holiday, the University of Michigan sophomore who a week ago dethroned Adolph Keifer as the National AAU backstroke champion, today had added another crown to his collection.

Trailing at the end of the breast stroke portion of the state championship 150-yard medley event, Holiday pulled away from his rivals in the backstroke portion and then coasted through the free style to win the crown in 1:37.3.

Oregon Girls Lead In Meet

Three Swimming Champs Crowned Friday Night.

CHICAGO —(INS)— A sweeping one-two-three finish in the 100-yard championship race last night gave the Multnomah Athletic club of Portland, Ore., a commanding lead today toward the team title of the National A. A. U. Senior Women's Swimming meet.

The 100-yard race, the first of eleven events to be decided in the three day meet at Medinah club, was won by Suzanne Zimmerman in 1:02.2.

Two other champions were crowned in Friday nights finals —Ann Ross of the St. George Dragon club of Brooklyn winning the one-meter lowboard diving title and 14-year-old Joan Fogle of Indianapolis winning the 300-yard medley race.

Sue Zimmerman finished five feet ahead of one team mate, Brenda Helser, and eight feet ahead of Nancy Merki, another Multnomah entrant in the 100-yard event. The 17-year-old high school student took a lead at the start of the race and never relinquished it.

Finishing last in the race was the defending champion Miss Marilyn Sahner, representing the Women's Swimming association of New York. Muriel Mellon, of San Diego, was fourth.

The ten points earned by the Oregon girls put Multnomah far ahead in the team title quest. Nearest contenders were Riviera club of Indianapolis and St. George Dragon club, of Brooklyn, with five points each.

The one-meter lowboard diving crown went to Ann Ross of St. George Dragon club, Brooklyn, for the third consecutive year. The judges gave her 126.93 points.

Third champion crowned during the evening was Joan Fogle who trailed Alyce Miller of Evanston by three yards at the end of the breast stroke section of the race, but moved out to take the lead in the back-stroke section, and won by 10 feet. Joan's time was 4 minutes 7.6 seconds.

Wargas Roll High Score In Doubles

Phil and Kate Warga turned in top total of 1084 in the mixed doubles league last night at Colony alleys as Phil led the men with 566. Margaret Baker paced the women with 511.

Plan Funeral for Ex-Tennis King

BOSTON —(U.P.)— Funeral services today were being planned for Richard D. Sears, sr., first National Amateur tennis champion and holder of the crown for seven years.

Sears, 81, died Thursday.

Inaugural lawn tennis championship at Newport in 1881 and 11 years later took down the first amateur court championship.

The U. S. Navy now provides a scientific fishing kit as part of the equipment for life boats and rafts, to enable survivors of torpedoings and shipwrecks to sustain life. The fishing kit rolls compactly and fits into a can. Instructions are printed on water proof paper with water proof ink.

Victory gardens and loose running dogs can develop quite a problem this spring. So if you own a "pooch" remember to provide him with opportunity for proper exercise without romping into your neighbor's garden. Your dog deserves a "break," but not into your neighbor's garden.

The duck has been selected as "guinea pig" in the study of chemical burns suffered in gas warfare. The discovery was made by medical men that the duck behaves just like a man in response to chemicals. So the duck takes a new role in the studies on prevention and treatment of war gas casualties.

Horses, fully saddled and bridled, have been found 50 feet deep in the eternal ice of northern Siberia, where they have been embalmed for hundreds of years. They are in an astonishing state of preservation with even the hair of their coats intact.

Probably the most important item in the fisherman's tackle requirements is the rod. At Yuncker's you can still choose from complete assortments of fishing rods for all types of fishing, from the famous True Temper steel casting rods, and all types of fly rods, to the popular jointed cane poles for still fishing. You're sure to find just the RIGHT rod for your needs at Yuncker's, at a price that fits your budget, too.

One of the greatest dangers to pearl divers are the furbelowed clams. A toe or finger which gets into the jaws of the bivalve, can only be saved by amputation, as the jaws lock themselves on the victim.

RATIONING HAD HIM CONFUSED

DAYTON—(AP)—As the line of consumers filed into Memorial hall, an OPA official asked each person:

"No. 1 or No 2 book?"

One man stood for a moment in the doorway, perplexed.

"Is this rationing?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the official.

"Yipe!" exclaimed the "consumer." "I thought it was a wrestling match!"

MILD RECOVERY TENDENCY SEEN IN STOCK MART

Individual Income Increased 29 Per Cent In February Over Previous Year.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Mild recovery tendencies appeared in today's early stock market transactions but many leaders continued to point lower.

At an active opening fractional advances were posted for Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Steel, Southern Railway and Great Northern. On the losing end were American Telephone, Pennsylvania, North American, Chesapeake & Ohio and Packard.

Boardrooms noted the compilation of the department of commerce indicating income payments to individuals in February were 29 per cent above those of the 1942 month and were 96 per cent greater than in the 1939 period. The total of $10,428,000,000 was under the January figure of $10.725,000,000. due to fewer dividend payments, but the decline was less than seasonal.

WILL BE LAW

New Debt Limit with Salary Rider Expected to Become Effective.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today was expected to permit the $210,000,000,000 debt limit bill—with its rider nullifying his order limiting net salaries to $25,000—to become law.

The president has until midnight tonight to sign or veto the measure—or let it become law automatically.

PRESS BARRED FROM MEETINGS

also is an assistant to the director of economic stabilization, will be chairman of the United States delegation which has been designated by President Roosevelt.

Other members will be Undersecretary of Agriculture Paul H. Appleby, Assistant Secretary of Commerce W. L. Clayton, Surgeon General Thomas Parran, and Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau federation.

The delegates will be accompanied by technical experts.

"It is anticipated," the state department announcement said, "that the conference will be as informal as possible, and in view of the fact that it will be primarily a meeting of technical experts, most of the discussions will take place in technical sections or committees."

Mr. Roosevelt revealed secrecy plans at a recent press conference, indicating the opinion that conditions prevailing at this year's Casablanca conference were more suited to the purposes of the food conference than an open gathering where reporters would have free access to the site of the meeting and to the adjacent grounds.

The office of censorship evidently has kept out of the food conference controversy within the administration family circle. The code of censorship contains a provision on the basis of which news reporters could have been requested to limit or abandon all coverage of the Hot Springs meeting.

But for reasons unexplained the White House decided to handle this one simply by ordering the physical exclusion of reporters from the conference site except during the opening and closing sessions. Both Davis and White House Secretary Stephen T. Early are understood to have urged Mr. Roosevelt to permit reporters the customary freedom to live among and to meet freely with conference delegates except during executive sessions and closed committee meetings.

There had been some hope that the exclusion order would be relaxed or abandoned until today's state department announcement which clearly stated that newsmen with special credentials—would be permitted to contact the conference directly only at the opening and closing sessions.

The United Press applied on April 5 to George Slosson, jr., manager of the Homestead, for reservations for its staff of conference reporters. On April 7, Slosson replied:

"Regret reservations here for period of forthcoming United Nations food conference beyond our jurisdiction. You will have to apply to state department."

An immediate application to the state department brought only the information that it would now accept applications for credentials. But reporters will be housed at a distance from the Homestead and the proposed credentials will not permit them to contact any delegates except on two specified days unless the delegates themselves leave the guarded hotel grounds and seek out reporters on neutral ground.

APPREHEND BOYS

Officers Find Them Throwing Stones at Windows.

Three youthful stone throwers were reprimanded by juvenile officers and deputy sheriffs yesterday after having broken several windows in a new home on Millsboro road.

Final disposition of the cases of two 12-year-old boys and a 13-year-old lad, depends upon whether or not the property owner files charges, the officers said.

DAVIS DENIES CHARGES OF PLANE POOL

Reports M'Arthur to Get More Combat Craft, Says Those In U. S. Now In Use.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — War Information Director Elmer Davis last night rebuked "an authoritative source" at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters for charging that there were 10,000 idle combat planes in the United States.

"It simply isn't so," said Davis in his weekly radio review. "The exact number of combat planes in this country is of course a military secret. But they are not lying idle."

He said it was natural that MacArthur and Prime Minister John Curtin should want more planes in Australia.

"Gen. MacArthur is going to get more planes—Secretary (of War Henry L.) Stimson promised that yesterday," Davis said. ". . . but other fronts need planes too; if a lot of them hadn't been sent to Africa, our recent victories might well have been defeats."

Davis' statement was precipitated by news dispatches from MacArthur's headquarters which said that authoritative sources there had charged that there was a "reserve pool" of 10,000 combat planes in the United States over and above lend-lease commitments and assignments to foreign fronts. The dispatch pointed out that four aides of MacArthur recently had returned to Australia after a trip to Washington to seek more supplies for the southwest Pacific.

Davis pointed out that many combat planes were needed in this country:

"Some of them are needed for the sea frontier—the steady patrolling to watch for submarines, which have again begun to appear, one or two of them, in the neighborhood of our coasts, and which might appear in larger numbers if there were no air force at home to hit back at them.

"Other combat planes in this country are just about to be sent off to the fighting fronts.

"Still others — a considerable number—are used for training.

"That is what most of those so-called idle planes in this country are doing — they are being used by the men who are going to fly and fight them, but have got to learn how first."

STAGES REVOLT

GOP Threatens to 'Fire' Panel On Pay-Go Tax Action.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— House Republicans today threatened a move to discharge the house ways and means committee from further consideration of the pay-as-you-go tax question unless immediate action is forthcoming.

Republican leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts said the minority would resort to whatever methods are necessary to get action.

His assertion followed a tentative agreement by Democratic leaders not to reopen the pay-as-you-go fight on the floor unless the Republicans agree to compromise for something less than the total forgiveness feature of the once-defeated Carlson-Ruml plan.

"I insist the house has a right to decide this question in whatever manner it sees fit," Martin said. "The leadership has no right to abridge that right."

Lucas High School Cage Players Get Letters at Banquet

Seventeen pupils in Lucas high school received letters for basketball participation last night following a community banquet sponsored for the sports department by the Lucas Mothers and Community clubs.

Six of the letters presented were to varsity players: William Kaylor, William Hammett, Robert Barger, Basil Swain, jr., James Harvey and John Welty. Seven were "second team" letters, a smaller gold "L" on a black basketball, given to: Maurice Callahan, Eugene Stake, Lester Maglott, Robert Archart, James Metcalfe, Charles Hunt and Charles Stephenson. The remaining four letters were presented to Eugene Echelbarger, team manager, Gilbert Frontz, Mildred Sphon and Margaret Briner, cheer leaders.

Completing the evening's program was the showing of seven reels of films, including sports shorts and "Aesop Fables" comedies, and a ball game between a seniors and alumni squad and underclassmen won the game.

YANK RAIDS STOP REVOLT

Officer Says Thailand, Burma Unrest Growing.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An army pilot who returned recently from China reported today raids by the U. S. army 14th airforce "are fomenting revolt and unrest among the Japanese-dominated people of Thailand, Burma, French Indo-China and enemy-held areas in China."

Maj. Albert J. Baumler, of Trenton, N. J. told the war department: "After one of the raids, Siamese troops revolted, killed their Japanese officers and made an effort to join the Chinese forces."

Byrnes Faces Tough Tangle of Problems

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)— Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes faces the toughest collection of problems probably ever handed to any government official beneath the rank of president.

Byrnes, veteran of 25 years in congress and former supreme court justice, is the working boss of the administration's battle against inflation.

Mr. Roosevelt's latest executive order tightening the present economic controls means some increase in Byrnes' powers. Particularly does the order add to Byrnes' headaches because now he, instead of the president, will decide borderline and hardship cases in which the office of price administration or the war labor board are involved.

The effect of Byrnes' new powers will be to screen Mr. Roosevelt still further from time-consuming detail work, thus giving the president a greater opportunity to concentrate on his job as commander-in-chief.

Byrnes and the president work together closely, conferring at frequent intervals - sometimes several times a day. Byrnes makes his own decisions on most economic steps on a mechanical nature but talks to the president before making a major policy change.

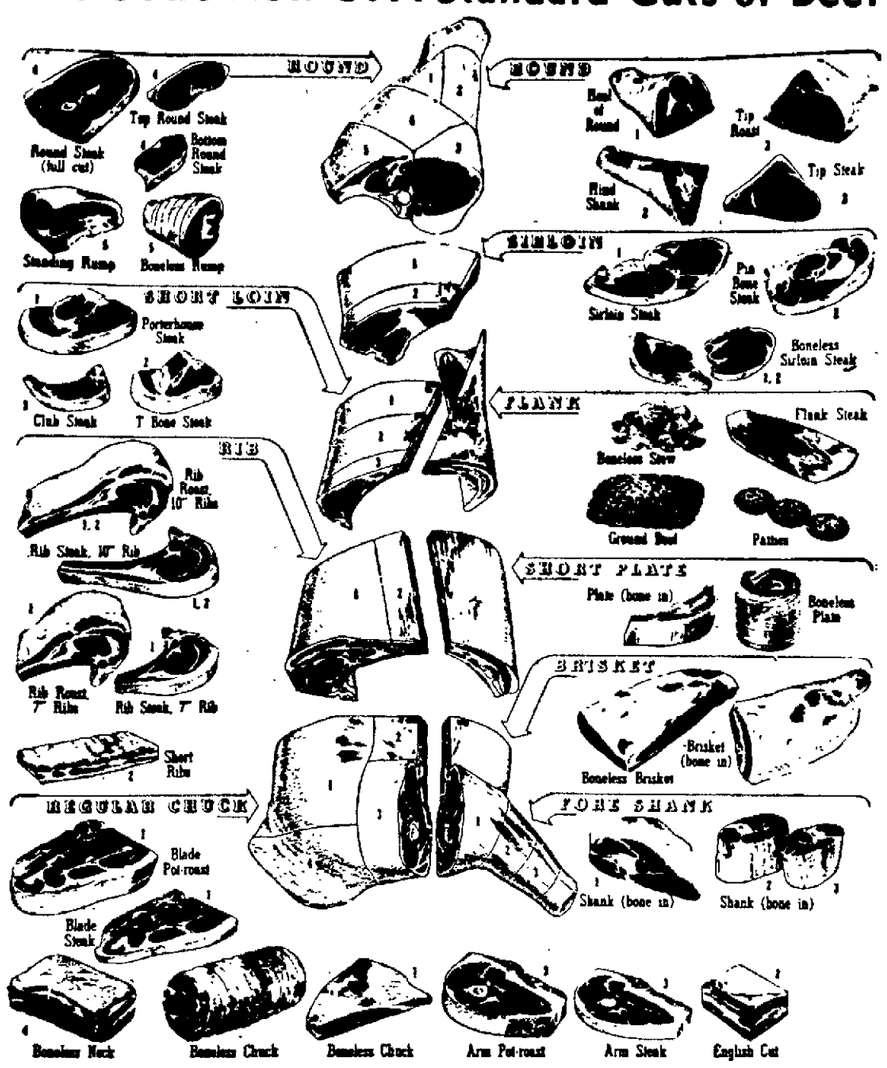
Here Are New OPA Standard Cuts of Beef



So that you'll get the beef that you pay the price for it, OPA orders the standard cuts shown above to start with the new retail ceiling prices on April 15. Standardized retail cuts have been established by OPA not only on beef but also on veal, lamb and mutton. Pork is already under retail control. The beef chart above shows, down the middle the standardized wholesale cuts and, at the sides, the standardized retail cuts taken from each. In addition, all meat in retail stores must be marked with its OPA grade. Official OPA chart.

control such exempted products as wheat, cotton, fresh fish, apples, other fresh fruits as they come into season, possibly pears, peaches and cherries, certain oil bearing seeds and milk for manufacturing purposes.

Brown's decision to control cotton and wheat prices indicated that the government would follow a policy of including federal benefit payments to farmers in determining parity prices. No ceilings can be placed on the major farm crops until they reach parity. But with those payments included both cotton and wheat prices exceed parity.

The congresional farm bloc, opposed to the inclusion of federal payments, jammed through the Bankhead bill barring this practice. The measure was vetoed by the president and was recommitted to the senate agriculture committee.

Under study for dollar and cents prices are many commodities whose prices are controlled at the processor level through fixed prices based on cost and a mathematical mark up for profit purposes. These products include sugar, bulk tea, milled rice, Maine and California sardines, eggs, butter, live and dressed poultry, cornmeal, canned fruits and vegetables.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Meet Sunday — The Mansfield Student Music club will meet at 3 p. m. Sunday at the home of Mrs. E. D. Gibson, 282 West Fourth street. "Opera Backstage" will be the topic discussed by Miss Thelma Reed.

Escapes Injury — Cyrus Swisshelm, Hillsboro, Highland county, escaped injury last night when his truck hit a guard rail post on U. S. Route 30, two miles west of Hayesville, state patrolmen reported. The truck was slightly damaged.

Gets $50 Gift — The Mansfield Garden center today had received a $50 cash gift from the Johnny Appleseed Garden club to help finance Victory garden work. The funds will be used for educational work and in providing information for amateur gardeners.

Finds Bicycle — Reported stolen three days ago from the Y.M. C. A., a bicycle owned by Charles Fiddler, rear 176 South Diamond street, was found yesterday at the rear of the Diemer service station on Park avenue west and returned to the owner.

Child Bitten — Mrs. C. K. Glasgow, 355 West Sixth street, reported to police last night that her daughter, Jeanette, 5, was bitten on the leg by a neighbor's dog as she played in the yard. The animal was tied when he attacked the child, police said. A physician treated the wound.

Find Lost Children — Mrs. Mary Allen Beck, 116 West Fifth street, called police yesterday when two girls, both two years old, came to her home and reported they were lost. The children, Lois Westfall, 181 North Mulberry street, and Delores Leddey, 185 North Mulberry street, were taken home by officers.

Rent Office To Move — This week-end will see the removal of the area rent office from its present location in the R. B. Gardner automobile agency on Park avenue west to new quarters in the Warner building on North Main street in the same suite with the ration board. The area rent office will be open for business Monday morning in the new location.

Awaits Committment—Because of overcrowded conditions in a state institution, Richard Lee, 27, of 137 Oakenwald avenue, is held in the Richland county jail awaiting committment. Lee was indicted at the recent session of the grand jury on a charge of breaking and entering with Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch ordering him committed to a state institution following a mental examination. The News-Journal erroneously reported Lee as a colored man in its account of grand jury action on April 2.

SENT TO O.S.R.

Brothers Sentenced For Firing School and Burglaries.

The Hensger brothers, convicted Parma arsonists and burglars, were due to arrive at the Mansfield reformatory today to begin indeterminate terms for setting fire to a Cleveland junior high school and burglarizing homes in the Cleveland area.

The brothers, Henry, 17, and Robert, 16, terrorized the city for weeks before police captured them after one youth shot their mother in the back. They confessed setting fire to four school buildings and participating in more than 40 burglaries.

Juvenile Judge Harry L. Eastman gave them the maximum penalty, ordering that they remain in the reformatory until they are 21. He criticized local and state agencies for failing to provide proper supervision for children from broken homes. A 12-year-old companion of the pair was sent to the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster.

ANTI-RACKET BILL BOOSTED

Senate Supporters Demanding Quick Action as House Passes Measure.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Demands for speedy senate consideration of the Hobbs anti-racketeering bill arose from senate backers of the measure today following passage of the legislation by the house.

Sen. Holman (R) Ore., sponsor of similar legislation in the past, planned to ask that hearings on the bill be held forthwith while labor interests girded for a showdown fight on charges that the measure would imperil labor's right to strike and to bargain collectively.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Hobbs (D) Ala., would provide jail terms up to 20 years and possible fines of $10,000 for interference with interstate commerce by striking labor unions.

The house approved the measure 207 to 107 late yesterday, the more than two-to-one vote marking the first setback for organized labor in the 78th congress. The bill grew out of a supreme court decision that the 1934 anti-racketeering act was faulty and was designed to remedy this defect.

Labor leaders have opposed the bill on grounds that it would interfere with labor's rights under the Clayton, Norris-LaGuardia, railway mediation and national labor relations acts, but the house passed a judiciary committee amendment to the Hobbs bill to safeguard these provisions.

Nothing in the act shall be construed to "repeal, modify or affect" labor's rights under the four laws, the amendment stated.

M'GREGOR VOTES 'NO'

Representative J. Harry McGregor, congressman from the 11th district, which includes Richland county, was among Ohio congressman who voted against the anti-racketeering bill. Those who favored it were: Brehm, Brown, Clevenger, Elston, Griffiths, Hess, Jeffrey, Jones, Smith, Vorys, Weichel. Others against: Bender, Bolton, Jenkins, Lewis, Ramey, Rowe. Democrats against: Crosser, Feighan, Kirwan.

Council Finally Clears Way for Can Collection

in the Second ward, Friday and Saturday in the Third ward, April 19 and 20 in the Fourth, April 21 and 22 in the Fifth, and April 23 and 24 in the Sixth.

Only shiny cans that have been prepared properly and placed in containers at the curb will be picked up by the city truck. Ends of the can must be removed and they must be flattened.

Russell Porch, First ward councilman, who sponsored the civil service measure, said L. L. Linham, garbage department superintendent, had requested that the post be placed under civil service.

If Linham qualifies under civil service regulations, his job will be removed from politics and he will be in line to retain it indefinitely regardless of a change in the city administration.

He has been in service with the garbage and sewage disposal departments for 30 years of the past 34 in Republican and Democratic administrations.

Mayor W. J. Locke said today he wanted to "study the ordinance and find out what Linham plans to do" before he signs the measure.

FLYIN' JENNY

AT AN EASTERN SEABOARD AIRPORT A U.S. ARMY TRANSPORT PLANE TAKES OFF ON A SPECIAL FLIGHT! CAPT RICK DAVIS IS ONE OF THE PASSENGERS -----
4-5-43
FIFTEEN HOURS LATER THE PLANE MAKES A FORCED LANDING IN THE AXIS-OCCUPIED COUNTRY OF BALKANIA-- IM COLONEL BRYSON, USA THIS SEEMS TO BE OUR UNLUCKY DAY!
AH -IT IS A PLEASURE TO WELCOME-- AND TAKE PRISONER-- SUCH A DISTINGUISHED PERSONNEL
MEANWHILE- SOMEWHERE IN NORTH AFRICA--
WHAT'S THE GOOD WORD, JENNY?
IT'S FROM COLONEL GRIFFIN! WE'RE TO MEET HIM IN CASABLANCA TOMORROW! SOUNDS EXCITING!
WHY GO TO CASABLANCA? DON'T YOU LIKE IT HERE?
JUST ANSWERING ANOTHER SOS CALL FROM AN OLD FRIEND, BOB--- COLONEL GRIFFIN, OF THE ARMY INTELLIGENCE!
WELL MISS YOU- HERES A LITTLE THINGUMAJIG FROM THE BOYS OF SQUADRON FIVE--
WHY, HOW SWEET! THANK YOU- AND GIVE THE BOYS MY LOVE!
4 6 43
OH! BEAUTIFUL!
LET'S SEE, JENNY!
TO JENNY DARE- FOR VALOR AND ETERNALLY COMRADESHIP. YOURS ETERNALLY THE BOYS OF FLYING FIVE
THOSE KIDS-- SPENDING THEIR HARD-EARNED MONEY TO GIVE ME THIS GOLD HEART--THAT REALLY GOT ME, BABE!
WELL, YOU KNOW PILOTS JENNY LAMB-- ROMANTICAL!
OF COURSE, ALL YOU DONE TO EARN IT WAS TO HELP EM LICK THE WHOLE HEINIE AIR FORCE AND SAVE THAT NICE CAPTAIN JOHNSON'S LIFE!
YOU NEVER LET ME DOWN, BABE DARLING -- OH, OH, HERE'S CASABLANCA!
I'LL BET OUR ARRIVAL DON'T CAUSE ALL THE FLUTTER THAT THE MEETING OF THEM TWO OTHER FELLERS DID A WHILE BACK!
MAYBE NOT-- BUT MY HEART'S BEATING PLENTY FAST!
CASSABLANCA, MOROCCO--
YES- AND YOU GIRLS HAVE CUT A WIDE SWATH OF TROUBLE FOR THE ENEMY SINCE WE LAST MET!
WE MEET IN ODD PLACES, COLONEL GRIFFIN!
DID YOU HEAR WHAT JENNY DONE DURING THAT RAID OVER BEE? BOY AND BROTHER, DID SHE---
YOU'VE BOTH DONE ENOUGH TO MERIT THE HIGHEST AWARDS OUR COUNTRY HAS TO OFFER!
BABE
STILL, THERE IS SO MUCH TO BE DONE-- SO MUCH I SHOULD LIKE FOR YOU TO DO-
THERE ARE PLACES ON THAT MAP THAT LOOK INTRIGUING!
YEAH--JENNY AND I JUST LOVE TO TRAVEL!
4-9-43
BALKANIA! IM NOT ASKING THIS BECAUSE IM AFRAID OR THAT I THINK BABE IS, BUT IS THERE EVEN A CHANCE TO GET THERE AND BACK?
HAVE YOU READ W.L. WHITE'S "THEY WERE EXPENDABLE"?
GOSH, YOU GOIN' TO TOSS US TO THE LIONS? WHAT'LL MY POOR OLD LUKE DO THEN--?
QUIET, BABE! GO ON, COLONEL GRIFFIN!
I AM NOT ACTUALLY ASKING YOU TO MAKE A SACRIFICE FLIGHT! YOU ARE TOO VALUABLE FOR THAT! BUT I MUST WARN YOU THAT IT WILL BE TOUCH AND GO!
IT'S ALL RIGHT, BABE HONEY!-----AND REMEMBER, YOU DON'T HAVE TO GO--
IF YOU GO, I GO-- IF WE NEVER GET BACK!
SORRY I GAVE YOU SUCH A TURN, BUT YOU GIRLS HAVE PROVED YOU DON'T NEED MENTAL CODDLING! AND THIS IS A RISKY JOB!
SO WE FLY TO BALKANIA! WHAT THEN?
THERE IS THE PLANE YOU WILL FLY! IT IS LITERALLY A FLYING ARSENAL!
SO THAT'S THE PICTURE! WE ARE ABOUT TO GUN SPONSOR A REVOLUTION- IS THAT IT?
